THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES

FOR THE WEEK ENDING SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 20, 1839.

NEWS BY THE GREAT WESTERN.

This fine Steam-packet, Capt. Hoskins, R.N., sailed from Bristol on the 23d ult., and brought us London dates to the morning of the 22d, with our files from the 13th inclusive. The news brought by the Great Western is not otherwise very interesting or important than as it announces the effect produced in England by the reception of the accounts from this country on the subject of the Maine question. The latest intelligence they had received in England was to the 2d of March, by the packet ship England, Capt. Waite, which made the passage out in 18 days. The tone of the London press is decidedly more mild and pacific than was anticipated in this city. The tory papers call loudly upon the government to increase the force in the Canadas, and abuse the Yankees as a matter of course. The "Times" brings forward with earnestness a plan for the settlement of the difficulties, which it had once before pressed upon the attention of the Government. It proposes a compromise of this sort:—ceding to the State of Maine a large portion of the territory of New Brunswick, which is not even claimed by Maine, upon condition of having the lines of the "disputed territory" allowed as claimed by Great Britain. The only fair construction to put upon the proposition of the "Times," and the whole argument to enforce it, is this:—The Yankees under the terms of the treaty of '83 have no doubt a right to all the territory they claim,—but should Great Britain concede this, it will cut off the communication between Fredericton and Quebec, to the hazard of the Canadian provinces; this, therefore, must not be yielded in any event, but the mouths of the people of Maine must be closed by throwing them a part of New Brunswick. Not a very moral proposition this, if proposed as an ultimatum, but significant as to the real merits of the controversy.

There were some rumours in London of a change of Ministry, of which, however, there seems little likelihood. The administration of Ireland, under Lord Normanby, is the question on which the resignation of Ministers will depend. Lord John Russell, in a very late speech, announced the intention of Lord Melbourne to carry on the government so long as a majority of the Commons should sustain him, and that on the Irish question the sense of the House would be taken at an early day. But the House will no doubt sustain him on that question.

The discussion of the Corn Laws has been renewed in each house of Parliament, and any alteration in them, or even inquiry into their operation, voted down by tremendous majorities. It is scarcely possible for an American to appreciate the reasoning by which the landholders maintain their position; the plain impolicy of such laws in the eyes, not alone of theoretical economists, was boldly exposed by Lord Brougham in a practical speech of great power.

The late elections for the Chamber of Deputies in France, were so unfavorable to the whole Ministry, that they had given in their resignation. The new Ministry had not been officially announced on the 20th ult. in Paris, but little doubt existed that Marshal Soult would be placed at the head of it, acting as Secretary of War, and M. Thiers at the head of the Foreign Department. Infinite difficulty had attended the composition of the Ministry in consequence of the objections of the King to this latter gentleman. Our readers will recollect that Thiers has once before been in the Ministry, and he is regarded as the real head of the one now forming. He is a literary man, author of an excellent republican history of the French Revolution, acquired great influence as an editor, and is moreover, a most brilliant parliamentary orator. The late Ministry was overthrown by a "coalition" of several parties, at the head of which, stood such men as Thiers, Guizot, and Odillon Barrot. Each of these parties was to be propitiated in the new Ministry, but the influence of Thiers altogether preponderating. Aut Cæsar, aut Nullus,—is his motto, and as two of the conditions of his acceptance of office, he insisted upon an active intervention in the affairs of Spain by declaring war against Don Carlos, and, upon Louis Philippe's yielding the actual presidency of his Council, which that most able of late sovereigns has hitherto maintained. These, and other conditions, the crafty King of the French submitted to with reluctance. It is pleasant to see among the list of Ministers proposed or selected, so many examples of literary men,—we allude to the case of Guizot, Thiers and Villemain. Neither England, nor our own country, have yet sufficiently honoured their authors in this point. Dupin, the great lawyer, and late President of the Chamber of Deputies, they can't get out of office. He is to have the Seals in the new Ministry Tergiversation is his forte by all accounts.

In London there is a good deal of a breeze among the editors about a delectable piece of scandal, in which Lady Flora Hastings, the little Queen, and others, figure. In another column some notice of it is quoted, but if you would see all the details, look to the "Star" of Tuesday last.

Poor Madame Vestris has been in a world of trouble of late. An attempt has just been made to assassinate, or dreadfully disfigure her,—so she says, and so probably is the fact, though many London editors are quite incredulous. Full details on this subject will likewise be found in another place.

We noticed upon the last arrival a dinner given by Count D'Orsay, to Prince Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, which Lord Durham likewise attended. This banquet, which brought together very heterogeneous guests, has much alarmed Count Molé, and it would appear that the report forwarded from London by Count Sebastiani has been a subject of grave consideration. The chances and interests of the Strasburgh prisoner, to whom the French Ministers have so awkwardly given the importance of a Pretender, were discussed at the dinner, it seems, with a freedom quite English; the toasts conveyed abundant meaning, although the guests were far from representing the same political opinions, since Lord Durham sat by the side of the bard of Eloa, and one of the foremost Tories by the Radical novelist, Bulwer. The most piquant circumstance is, that the dinner was the result of a bet made at Lady Blessington's. The conversation dwelt in her Ladyship's drawing-room upon the perpetual panic of the Tuileries Cabinet, when Count D'Orsay offered the Marquess of S——— a bet of a hundred guineas that a mere dinner which he should give to a few friends would become the object of a diplomatic note. He was right. Lord Palmerston, who had been a witness to the wager, declared some days after to Count D'Orsay that he had won the hundred guineas.

A world of ridicule has at times been heaped on the handsome Count, but if one can judge by the "company he keeps," the style of his dinners, and the like, he must be a man of the right sort. Among the "departures" and "arrivals" announced in the fashionable Gazettes, we almost always note his;—the last is that he had just left town, to meet a distinguished party at Lord Chesterfield's.

A lady often associated with the "beau D'Orsay" in our papers, is the Countess of Blessington. One would imagine from the virtuous indignation frequently vented by our editors on this topic, that her ladyship would soon come upon the town. It is pleasant, therefore, to observe that she recently entertained a party at dinner, at her villa at Kensington Gore. Viscount Strangford and Lord Brougham were among her Ladyship's guests.

Prince Louis Napoleon is treated with much consideration in England. He has recently reviewed a body of troops at Woolwich. He has taken a box at the Italian Opera, opposite that of her Majesty. The French Cabinet has no doubt been considerably uneasy at the vicinity of so formidable a man,—formidable by his talents, and the grand association of his name. We wonder if they will try to bully Old England to drive him from her fast-anchored isle, as they recently did Switzerland? "Don't you wish they may get him!"

The French think to off-set the civilities offered the Prince, by the warm reception they have been giving to Papineau, the Canadian Agitator, who lately sailed from this port and has arrived in France; one English editor announces his arrival in a paragraph commencing in this wise;—"That scoundrel Papineau," &c., &c.

For a wonder they begin to talk scandal of Louis Philippe and Rachel. Thus mysteriously does one "correspondent" touch upon it.—"A ridiculous piece of scandal has been circulated about the King and a certain young actress who belongs to a people without a country; it is that the most domestic and uxorious of husbands has, in his old age, been tempted to commit follies of which he was guiltless in the days of his youth and the height of his manhood. I have no doubt that it is a malicious invention of the enemy."

While upon gossip, let us run our tether, that is, the length of our gossip exchange—

"The Duke of Rovigo and the Marquess St. Pierre have just fought a duel in the forest of St. Germain with swords; it was respecting a disputed right to the smiles of a certain gay actress. The Duke is slightly wounded, but Frenchmen exaggerate these things, and the Duke has been extolled into a hero."

Thus says the "Court Journal," under a mistake however, for later dates say it was a brother of the Duke;—and writing of duels ["speaking of guns!"] reminds us to snip out two more, which are of the last importance, considering the "parties from which they emanate."

The Count St. Leon (an illegitimate child of Napoleon, it is said) had killed sixteen men in sixteen different duels, owing to the expertness of his aim. In a mixed company, he lately insulted an officer, a foreigner, in the grossest manner, three different times, by trying to break his Turkish pipe; this was in order to have a duel. The officer, who was aware of his object, let him proceed to the third insult, and then laid hold of him by the neck, threw him down on the floor, and dragged him out of the room, to the great gratification of the company. This occurred in Paris, since which time, we believe, the Count has offered no more insults to any person.

Don Miguel (late of Portugal), who lives on alms from the Pope, having recently insulted the lady of a foreign gentleman, the husband insulted Don Miguel the first time he saw him afterwards. Don Miguel challenged him to fight a duel, but the husband replied, he should never degrade himself by fighting a duel with a man who lived on alms. This settled Don Miguel.

A little while since, we gave some account of the great Portuguese heiress, Miss, or Countess, or Duchess Sampayo, aged nine years! She was carried over to England by the Duchess of Palmella, the wife of a distinguished Minister of the little Queen Donna Maria; in order to keep her from her relatives, safe and sound for the Marquess of Fayal, the son of the Duchess. All parties have since returned to Lisbon. The Sampayos derive all their importance from the enormous wealth accumulated by one of their kindred, now deceased, during the Peninsular wars of Napoleon, as army agent or contractor. The "fortune" now in question, has already been married to the young Marquess, but the relatives of the young lady, it is known, have endeavoured to set aside the marriage, on the ground that the consent of the guardians was not given. The cause will have to come before the courts there. It was tried before a tribunal at Paris, when the parties were there, who ordered the young lady to be sent to a convent till she was fifteen, and left it to her decision then whether the marriage should be binding or not. The Duchess of Palmella, however, carried her off, and brought her to Lisbon. The Queen has nominated the young lady one of her maids of honor, and in the autograph letter conveying the invitation to come to the palace, addressed her by the title of Marchioness of Fayal, thus already, as it were, pronouncing an opinion upon the case in dispute. This proceeding is viewed as very imprudent, to say the least of it, under the circumstances of the case. The affair excites a good deal of interest in Lisbon. The young lady had a large fortune at the time she was betrothed, which has since been greatly augmented by the death of her brother, which left her sole heiress to a property said to be worth at least 20,000*l* a-year.

The hopes of the young Marquess of Fayal would not seem very chimerical nor ridiculous; but we are going to quote some "lofty aspirations" of provincial Frenchmen, that never would have been conceived save in la belle France:—

"There is much talk in Paris among the higher circles about the frequent arrests made at the Tuileries of persons who come up from all parts to speak to Louis Philippe. In the last six months above twenty of these troublesome visitors have been apprehended and conveyed to the Bicetre or to Maisons de Santé, after undergoing minute examinations. These facts have been ascribed by some prints to political causes and criminal designs. Such is not the case. These arrests have all the same causes, with different circumstances; they are all or almost all connected with a sort of monomania, which one might take to be epidemic, and which exhibits itself in a chimerical love for Princess Clementina of Orleans, whom most of those poor creatures have never seen!! They come up from the provinces to Paris, their hearts full of their mad passion, in order to demand her Highness's hand of her father! The personal attractions and fortune of Louis Philippe's daughter would justify enough the affection of those pretenders, if romantic passions for Princesses were not a common disease. Poor Maria Antoinette was long importuned by a worshipper of that description, who was known at Versailles under the name of L'Amoreux de la Reine.' The Duchess de Berry was the object of a chimerical passion of the same description.

Among other on dits from the French capital, we observe the following:—General (Baron) Lallemand, proscribed after the restoration in France, died in Paris, on the 9th inst., in the 63d year of his age.—This probably means Gen. Lallemand, very well known in this city, where for a while he had his residence. If we remember aright, he acted as aid-de-camp to the Emperor at Waterloo. He was created a Peer of France by the present king.

The English seem to loathe the idea of having their Queen marry a German; they have had enough of them, they think, and they take every opportunity to manifest these feelings. Among other pretenders to the hand of Victoria, is a nephew of Leopold, King of the Belgians, whilome the husband of the Princess Charlotte. A London paper, the "Age," hits over the foreign prince in the following pretended letter from his Highness, rebuking the objections of that paper to the match.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE AGE.

Albert Francois Auguste Charles Emanuel.

Among the youthful debutantes of the present season in England, is the Hon Ellen Louisa Brougham, daughter of Lord and Lady Brougham. The young lady has just entered her 17th year. Another is the daughter of Lord Durham, whose chance, by the bye, for the premiership, it would be no bad speculation to back, could you get tolerable odds.

Miss Bertha Southey, the daughter of the Poet Laureate, has been married to the Rev. Thomas Hill, a minister of the established church. The laureate himself was expected to be married to Miss Caroline Bowles, before the end of March. The Marquess of Douro, a son of Lord Wellington, it is announced is certainly to marry Lady E. Hay. They make a great talk about the bride's trousseau, and speak flippantly of the Duke's finding a drawer full of diamonds among other rubbish, which he had altogether forgotten. One article was valued at only 50,000*l*.! All these pretty play things are intended for his daughter-in-law, say the papers.

Another marriage is much talked of in the fashionable world, between Lord Alvanley and Lady Acton, by which his Lordship will acquire a large fortune; that Lady possessing great wealth in her own right, she being the only child of the late Duc d'Alberg. Sir Richard Acton, her late husband, left her a considerable dowry, which reverts to their only son, to whom his large estates have devolved.

The "Evening Star" has a great foreign correspondent who furnishes the following items of literary intelligence, of which by the way we never had so little as just now, both from England, and in our own country. Lady Blessington's "Idler in Italy" is the only work named in our foreign papers which we are anxious to get hold of.

The first volume (in royal 8vo. with 12 portraits, price one guinea,) of "the First Series of Historical Sketches of Statesmen who flourished in the time of George III.," is announced. This, in fact, will be an extension of the Sketches by Lord Brougham, in late numbers of the Edinburgh Review. The book will have Brougham's name on the title page. The characters sketched in this volume are George III., Chatham, North, Loughborough, Sheridan, Grenville Canning, Franklin, Emperor Joseph, Thurlow, Gibbs, Burke, Pitt, Dundas, Wilberforce, Grattan, Frederick II., Mansfield, Grant, Fox, Windham, Erskine Percival, Romilly, and Gustavus III. This volume will contain "Remarks on Party" and a "Parallel between the Empress Catherine and Queen Elizabeth." In the Appendix will be "Lord Chatham's conduct as to employing Indians." "Sketch of Lord North, by Lady C. Lindsay, (his daughter,) and a statement of the case between Queen Elizabeth and Mary, Queen of Scots.

Theodore Hook's new novel, "Births, Deaths, and Marriages," will appear in a day or two—so will James's, called "Charles Tyrrel."

Bulwer's play of "Richelieu" is in its fifth edition—think of that in ten days!

Lady Bulwer's novel "Cheveley" is in the press, and will not be suppressed, though strong efforts to do so have been made.

Lockhart has published a smashing reply to the pamphlet by James Ballantyne's son, charging him with gross misrepresentations of J. Ballantyne, in the life of Scott.—This is in the form of a letter to Sir Adam Ferguson, and is called "The Ballantyne Humbug Handled." A reply is threatened.

Marryatt's "Phantom Ship" is in the press.

Crofton Croker is bringing out, with introductions and notes, "Popular songs of Ireland."

ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO DISFIGURE MAD. VESTRIS.

At Bow-street, on Tuesday morning, Mr. Charles Mathews called upon Sir Frederick Roe under the following extraordinary circumstances:—About nine o'clock the previous evening, a gentleman of the name of Lancaster, called at the Olympic Theatre and inquired for Mr. Mathews, mentioning that he had come upon business of the utmost importance. Mr. Mathews being engaged at the time, and thinking that the important business might only be to request an order for the theatre, or some other trifling matter, desired him to see Mr. Peake, to whom he was accordingly introduced. He then stated that in passing along Lincoln's-inn-fields, a short time before, he heard the following conversation between two men, one apparently a mechanic, and the other wearing a flushing coat or jacket:—"Well, is it gone?" inquired the one dressed as a mechanic; "Yes," answered the other. The one who spoke first then remarked that "Charley," would get it now, or something to that effect, when the other told him it was not intended for "Charley," but for "Madame," and he had received a letter about it. Mr. Lancaster, finding that he was unobserved, and believing that the conversation referred to Mr. and Mrs. Mathews, and supposing that it was intended to do them some injury, he listened attentively and overheard the one in the flushing coat tell the other that the article to which they had been alluding had been sent by the London Parcels Delivery Company. Some further conversation passed between them, but although he followed them closely, he could not hear to what it referred. As they were proceeding towards Portugal-street, the one in the flushing jacket took off his hat to take his handkerchief out of it, when a letter dropped from it. Neither of them discovered the loss of the letter, and Mr. Lancaster, who still followed them, picked it up, and as it was open, he commenced to read it. Before he had finished it, however, the men had disappeared into some of the courts or turnings in Portugal-street, and he unfortunately lost sight of them. The following is a copy of the letter verbatim et literatim:—

"Dear Jack—Now Mind what i say. I'll have no bloody corpsing work, so take care and do nothink of the species. Do something as will tattoo her dam'd countenance and Disfigger it with everlasting pepper. Better her than him this time cause if she's prevented from playacting her playhouse wont pay and then he will Suffer in his pockets for Daring to speak agin a free country. Dam him we'll serve him out another time. you had better send the thing by the parcels delivery and address it to her at the stage door in Craven buildings. Mind I wont have no shot or shells only gunpowder. That will be enough to throw her into fits and blind her so i remaine your living

"B. F. ZATCHELL."

The "Z" in the name is not distinctly written, but it appears more like that letter than any other, although it might be taken for "Y" or "G"; and as "Gatchell" is an American name, Mr. Mathews thought that the writer intended the indistinct mark for "G." The letter was addressed—"To John Jackson, to be left at the ship."

It was written upon a half-sheet of foolscap paper, which was folded like post, and from the mark it bore it appeared to have been made in England. There was no date to it, but it seemed to have been written recently, and although the outside, and the corners in particular, were a little worn by being carried in the pocket, the inside was perfectly clean. Mr. Lancaster delivered the letter to Mr. Mathews, and attended at Bow-street on Tuesday to give any further information in his power relative to this mysterious affair. No parcel arrived at the theatre that night, and Mr. Mathews gave Sir F. Roe the above information on Tuesday morning.

Sir Frederick thought that as no parcel of any kind had reached them, the whole affair would turn out to be a hoax, but Shackell, the officer, received instructions to inquire into the matter, and endeavour to trace the parties who had been seen in Lincoln's-inn-fields the previous evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathews, accompanied by Shackell, then proceeded to the theatre, and on their arrival they found that a parcel had actually been delivered at seven o'clock in the morning by the London Parcels Delivery Company. It was addressed to Madame Vestris, and directed to be left at the stage-door in Craven-buildings. The writing upon it appeared to be disguised, and was much superior to that of the letter which the man had dropped the previous evening. It was wrapped up with great care, and on the top was written "This side to be kept up." Both Mr. and Mrs. Mathews were considerably alarmed on perceiving the parcel, and it was considered unsafe to attempt to open it. One of the workmen employed at the theatre at length came forward and broke the top of it with his heel, and it was then discovered to be a neatly finished mahogany box, about fourteen inches in length, and eight in breadth, and nearly five in depth. It had not been locked, and on the lid a piece of paper was fixed with wafers or sealing-wax, and in the middle of it was written, "A gift from a friend," and on each side the words, "Open sessame." A piece of wood fitting into groves on each end of the box, and attached to the lid was lifted up without separating this division from it. On each side of this partition were carefully laid a quantity of combustibles. Through the lid were drawn three strings, which communicated with something contained in a paper in the inside, which still is unbroken, and fixed to the top of the box. On the outside these strings were ingeniously covered by the paper, upon which were written the words already mentioned, so that nothing to excite suspicion appeared at first sight. It is very surprising that, considering the careless manner in which the box was broken open, nothing serious happened; and, although the utmost skill had been used to avoid mischief, it could not have been done more effectually than the workman did it by accident. None of the strings communicating with the dangerous articles within have been touched, and everything remains as it had been placed by the persons who formed the malicious design. One of the divisions contained a large quantity of powder, in a paper above which, and attached to the box, so as to communicate with the other division, are a quantity of lucifer matches; but as the contents are yet unknown, it is impossible to form an idea of the mischief that the explosion might have occasioned; however, it is evident from the care which has been employed about the matter, and the skill which has been exhibited in the formation of the box, that the harmless result of the diabolical design can be attributed to accident only. When it was afterwards communicated to Sir Frederick Roe that the parcel had arrived, he ordered an inquiry to be made respecting the person who had taken it to the office of the London Parcels Delivery Company, and from a private mark upon the direction, it was found to have been given in to the receiving house in Plumtree street. The person who took in the parcels there being sent for and examined, deposed that on the previous evening, between seven and eight o'clock (about an hour before Mr. Lancaster saw the two men in Lincoln's-inn-fields) a short man came in, and in a hurried manner laid down the parcel in question, saying, "There's a parcel, and there's the 3d.;" at the same time putting 3d. upon the table. The clerk desired him to wait till he should weigh it, to see whether the charge should not be 4d.; and he did so, but appeared anxious to get away. The sum paid was correct, and the man went away immediately. A person being in the office at the time who had to pass the theatre intended to have carried it immediately to Mrs. Mathews, but it was afterwards determined to send it in the usual way, and it was accordingly taken to the office in Rolls-buildings, and only brought to the theatre on Tuesday morning, thereby giving Mr. Lancaster time to inform Mr. Mathews of the conversation above detailed, and enabling him to guard against the design intended to be practised to the injury of Mrs Mathews. The officers are actively engaged in endeavouring to find out the parties who have been made the tools in this disgraceful affair, for it is evident that the writer of the letter and his associates are not the principal persons in the design, and no exertion will be spared to discover all who have been concerned in it. Mr. Mathews has already offered a reward of £29 to any one who will give such information as will lead to the apprehension of the parties; and a further sum of £80 will be paid on their conviction.

We really do not know what to make of this affair; but for the present, it bears very much the character of a hoax. Bell's Life.

THE ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE MADAME VESTRIS

As many persons have been led to consider, from paragraphs published in some of the newspapers during last week, that the diabolical design to murder or mutilate Mrs. C. Mathews was never intended to produce any serious result, and as such an impression was calculated to injure both Mr. and Mrs. Mathews, it was determined to submit the box and its contents for the inspection of some person whose opinion in regard to the probability of an explosion taking place on opening it, and the effects of the explosion, ought to set those points at rest. Shackell, the officer, was accordingly desired on Saturday to take the box to Mr. Godfrey, the chemist, in the Strand, in order that that gentleman might examine it, and report upon the nature of the articles which it contained; but it was afterwards thought that the opinion of Professor Daniell, of King's College, might carry still more weight with it, and the box was, therefore, taken to him. After a careful examination of both the box and its contents he gave the officer the following certificate:—

"King's College, March 9.

"Upon examining a box which was placed in my hands by Mr. Shackell, one of the officers of the public office, Bow-street, by desire of Sir Frederick Roe, and the lid of which had been previously forced in, I found that there were three strings which passed through the lid, and which had evidently been connected with a moveable partition dividing the box longitudinally, and which must have been lifted on opening the box. The sides of this partition are covered with glass paper, so arranged as to bear against the points of several lucifer matches, fixed against the sides of the box in such a way as to render it almost certain that the friction caused by drawing up the partition must have ignited them. Underneath the matches, on one side, there was a quantity of gunpowder in a paper, placed in the midst of tow and quick match.

"J. F. DANIELL."

Professor Daniell at the same time told the officer that the quantity of gunpowder at present in the box (which is less than half the quantity it contained when first opened), if ignited in the manner described by him in his certificate, would certainly do a serious personal injury to any one near it. Those who have not seen the ingenious construction of the box may be excused for considering the affair a hoax; but none who have seen the box have entertained a doubt but that an injury, and a very serious one, was intended to be done to Mrs. Mathews. It has been thought surprising that an explosion did not take place when the lid was forced in, but when it is known that the matches which were arranged to bear against the glass-paper upon the sides of the partition were above the paper which was so raised out from the wood as to come in contact with the matches when the partition was drawn up, it will be seen that they could only be ignited by the lid being lifted in the ordinary way, and by forcing it down the glass paper would be removed from the matches. The contents of the box (with the exception of the portion consumed in experiments to ascertain the nature and strength of the combustibles) have been in the possession of the officers employed in the case since Mr. Watts examined them, and everything has been carefully preserved which may be of any use in discovering and proving the guilt of the parties concerned in the transaction. It was at first supposed that the authors of the plot had come from America: and Keys, the officer, proceeded to the docks, accompanied by Mr. Lancaster, who had seen the two men in Lincoln's-inn-field, and picked up the letter, but although there were two men belonging to the American vessels then lying there, named Jackson (the person's name to whom the letter was addressed), Mr. Lancaster could identify neither of them as the party he had seen drop the letter. There were only two American ships at the docks, and Mr. Lancaster, having seen the men belonging to both, did not think that any one of them was like either of the persons whose conversation he had overheard, and from subsequent inquiries which have been made, it is now believed that the guilty parties are not Americans. The officers, however, are still actively engaged in collecting information relative to the affair and it is expected that the offenders will soon be discovered and brought to justice. Zoological Society.—The council have purchased a young male chimpanzee. He is not quite so large as the former chimpanzee, of amazing memory, whom many of our readers visited three years since in what was then the keeper's kitchen, but he is healthy, and in good spirits, and equally worthy of notice. It may be worth reminding our younger friends that the chimpanzee is from Africa.

COURT SCANDAL.

The gossips of London have during the past week been indulging in one of those side-wind stories which are at all times grateful to the lovers of scandal, but which, we are happy to state, is without the slightest shadow of foundation. The Court Journal thus explains the matter:—A lady, not more distinguished by the beauty of her person than by the refinement of her manners, the delicacy of her conduct, and the strength of her intellect, is attached to the household of an illustrious person whom every Englishman reveres for the prudence of her conduct. This lady, feeling indisposed, called in a physician enjoying the favor and confidence of the highest Personage in the realm, who immediately after his visit, requested a conference with a noble married lady in the same household. To this lady he made a communication which, if true, would be either a proof of a romantic, because secret union on the part of his patient, or utterly subversive of her title to be considered a woman of honor. This statement the most honorable lady repeated to her husband, who felt it his duty to lay the whole circumstances before a noble relative of the aspersed lady. Who can describe the anguish of the Nobleman on hearing this statement! He proceeded at once to the palace, and immediately brought the affair on the tapis. The injured lady was thunderstruck, and indignantly denied the existence of any ground for the suspicions of the physician. It was then proposed that a medical man of high character, who enjoyed the particular confidence of his late Majesty, should be called upon to report upon the truth or falsity of the physician's suspicion. The aspersed lady and her noble relative positively refused to submit to any such reference, arguing, and most properly too, that the word and honor of the injured lady ought at once to be considered evidence of the falsity of the injurious surmise. What course will be pursued by the family of the lady we are at present ignorant. The physician, we have since learnt, denies that such a communication was made to the noble lady as she reported to her husband!!! A contemporary has been misinformed with respect to the supposition that the physician alluded to has been made the tool in a political intrigue; there is not the slightest ground for such a supposition, neither is it possible that the purpose of any political party could be subserved by such a course of conduct. We must confess that the more we consider this affair, the greater is our regret—besides the injury to the party directly interested, a wound has been inflicted upon a more Illustrious personage. The court of our maiden Queen has hitherto been above suspicion, and now, notwithstanding its purity, it is made the subject of ribald jests and injurious surmises. We have, however, put the matter in a light which, we trust, will at least put a stop to the more infamous slanders which have been current during the last fortnight. The lady alluded to, we observe, has ever since been a constant guest at her Majesty's table.

AUTHORSHIP IN PARIS.

The number of poets, authors, dramatists, journalists, and literary characters of all descriptions, that throng in Paris is incalculable. They are found in the most miserable garrets as well as in the gilded saloons of spacious hotels. Thousands and thousands of individuals depend for their daily bread on the theatres, the publishers, the booksellers, and the newspapers. Paris swarms with scribblers of indifferent merit, authors of well founded pretensions, editors, stenographists, vaudevillists, translators, compilers, and correctors of works; correspondents of journals, and periodicals, &c. Literary hermits are rare. Charles Lodier and Ballanche are the only distinguished writers who live in a secluded manner, and do not mingle in the busy circles of their literary brethren. The reader naturally inquires, "How can so many votaries of the muses obtain employment and bread!" Alas! hundreds die of hunger, disappointment, blasted hopes, and defeated projects. There is nevertheless immense scope in Paris for literary occupation. The Parisian press is the most extensive in the world. There are upwards of twenty-seven daily political journals of which the circulation is considerable. We will quote a few instances, and cite the leading ones:—

Journal des Debats	13,000	Quotidienne	4,000
Constitutionnel	12,500	Moniteur	3,500
Courrier Francais	800	Gazette des Tribunaux	3,000
Le Temps	8,200	Le Droit	2,500
Le Siecle	7,000	Le Messager	2,500
La Presse	7,000	L'Impartial	2,500
Gazette de France	6,500	Bons Sens	2,000
National	5,500	La France	1,100
Journal General de France	4,000

This is the average daily circulation of the leading French newspapers. The periodical works are also numerous; upwards of 37 reviews, pamphlets, and brochures, issue monthly from the press. La Revue Britannique, La Revue du Nord, Le Grand Livre, Le Panorama, Le Londres, Le Journal des Laras (sporting magazine) &c., &c., are amongst the principal. The weekly periodicals are, La Revue de Paris, La Revue des Deux-Mondes, Chronique de Paris, La France Litteraire, L'Homme des Lettres, La Revue Africaine, La Revue des Colonies, L'Actionnaire, &c. All these magazines resemble the monthly English publications, in size and matter. There are moreover 77 newspapers published once or twice, some even three times every week.

The literary papers that correspond to the Literary Gazette and Athenæum in England are, La Voleur and Le Cabinet de Lecture, each appearing six times a month. Then there are journals and magazines for particular subjects, such as for the theatres, the fashions, commerce, trade advertisements, fashionable information, public works, scientific matters, &c &c. Each literary society in Paris has its periodical. Le Journal Statistique circulates 13,000 numbers monthly. Hence, from these statements, the reader may fancy how the swarm of authors living in Paris procure the means of subsistence.

LONDON POLICE.

Marlborough Street.—"Fine Pisantry."—A prodigious hubbub in the vicinity of the office indicated the approach of the parties most interested in an Irish warrant for assault, and in a few minutes a brace of brawny, bony, savage-looking women, who could have been produced nowhere in the world except in Ireland, made their appearance before Mr. Chambers and Mr. Courtoy, scolding, screaming, and seemingly ready to tear each other into pieces.

"Well, said Mr. Chambers, looking at the black-eye of one and the scratched face of the other, there has been a boxing match between you I suppose.

I stuck up for me own, roared Biddy Collins, the defendant. There stands Poll Moriarty's godmother, who keeps me lawful husband night, noon, and morning from me, who's got me marriage lines to show for him.

Don't be quite so violent, Mrs. Collins, said the magistrate, let us first hear what the complainant has to say.

She aint able to spake a blessed word for herself, said Biddy, her husband's only got three thimbles and a pea, and gets his living wid robbing people.

I can spake for me own self, said the complainant angrily, I don't know bad nor good of your husband, barring he sells oranges agin me in Piccadilly, and whin I offer sixteen a shilling he gives twenty and takes away the job.

Let us hear about the assault, said Mr. Chambers.

Then, yer Honnor, said Maggy, between eight and nine, or may be a quarter to eight, I went for three pounds of praties, and in comes Biddy to tear me cap and me hair out.

I humbly beg yer parding, screamed Biddy, but if you don't lave me own lawful husband to me I'll ribbon yer bonnet and tear out yer heart.

Plaze yer Honner, said the husband of the complainant, Biddy Collins is always abusing me kracter when I'm gitting me living honestly wid me pea and thimbles.

You may consider it an honest living, master, said Mr. Chambers, but I have known several of your trade transported.

All I ax yer Honner, said the husband, is to bind over Biddy Collins to keep the pace.

Make her keep the peace, answered Mr. Chambers. Why, what Act of Parliament is strong enough to keep a woman's tongue quiet?

Nobody shan't make me hould me tongue, said Biddy; and I'll spake me mind if I'm thransported. What did Maggy say to me? that she hoped me and me children would be dry and hungry; and then didn't I go out to fight for me own rights.

So you went to Piccadilly on purpose to fight with the complainant, did you, asked Mr. Chambers?

It wasn't to Piccadilly I wint, it was to Marrybon, at a tater-shop, by which manes whin I cotched a hoult of the hair of Maggy's head she up'd wid a tater and hot me an ugly whack in me eye. Plaze yer honner I'm not a bl-ggard, and I don't make use of language I'm ashamed on; but me life and sowl I'll pull the nasty, dirty, stinking, female dog's liver out if she keeps back me own lawful husband.

There's only one way to settle this business, said Mr. Chambers, and that is, to make you find bail.

Och, do you mane that, says Biddy, thin here, Maggy Harrison, you may take me husband, bones and body and all.

But you hear she don't want the bones and body of your husband, said Mr. Chambers, she wants him to let her sell her oranges in peace.

Let me away this time and I'll give up bones and body and all of me husband. Say its a bargain Maggy and we'll go over the way and make things comfortable.

The bench having decided that the defendant was to find bail all parties were removed from the office.

Eight hundred masked balls took place at Paris, and at the barrieres, during the nights of Monday and Tuesday—the last days of the carnival. To-day all is quiet, repentance and maigre fare. The masquerading on the Bouvelards, &c., was nothing very great; Lord H. Seymour and his jockey friends were a little more disguised than usual, and there was a French flag at one window of his carriage, and an English one at the other, in reference perhaps to the birth and parentage of the noble lord.

If you wish to lose an election, send all your canvassing letters with the postage unpaid; if from the country the more certain.—The brutal custom of throwing at a cock tied by one of its legs to a stake, which was a favourite amusement in barbarous times on Shrove Tuesday, has ceased to be practised for some years past.—A large portion of Dover cliff, so boautifully described by Shakspeare, has given way, and separated from the main body.

Tit for Tat.—A young Englishman while at Naples was introduced at an assembly of one of the first ladies, by a Neapolitan gentleman. While he was there, his snuff-box was stolen from him. The next day, being at another house, he saw a person taking snuff out of his box. He ran to his friend—"There (said he) that man in blue, with gold embroidery, is taking snuff out of the box stolen from me yesterday. Do you know him? Is he not a sharper?" "Take care (said the other); the man is of the first quality." "I do not care for his quality (said the Englishman): I must have my snuff-box again; I'll go and ask him for it." "Pray," said his friend, "be quiet, and leave it to me to get back your box." Upon this assurance the Englishman went away, after inviting his friend to dine with him the next day. He accordingly came, and as he entered, "There," said he, "I have brought you your snuff-box." "Well, how did you obtain it?" "Why," said the Neapolitan nobleman, "I did no wish to make a noise about it; therefore I picked his pocket." Duten's Memoirs.

The Name of Charles.—France has no cause to congratulate herself on the majority of her kings who have borne the name of Charles. Charles the Bald was a capuchin king, and a visionary. Charles the Fat was possessed of a devil, and died a fool. Charles the Simple was worthy of his name. Charles the Handsome was the enemy of commerce, and travelled nowhere without a carriage full of relics. Charles the Wise, in one day, during the times of the Jacquerie, killed 20,000 of his subjects. Charles IX., the king of St. Bartholomew, shot his subjects with his fowling-piece. Charles X., late at Holyrood, but now sleeping with his fathers, crowns the series. Aldine Magazine.

Irishman's Notion of Discount.—It chanced one gloomy day, in the month of December, that a good humoured Irishman applied to a merchant to discount a bill of exchange for him at rather a long, though not an unusual date; and the merchant having casually remarked that the bill had a great many days to run, "That's true," replied the Irishman; "but then, my honey, you don't consider how short the days are at this time of the year.'

Fighting by Measure.—The usual place of resort for Dublin duellists is called the Fifteen Acres. An attorney of that city, in penning a challenge, thought, most likely, he was drawing a lease, and invited his antagonist to meet him at 'the place called Fifteen Acres, be the same more or less.'

Evils of Non-Residence.—A certain bishop had a mistress; an affair of importance calling him to the metropolis, he tore himself from his fair one, who dissolved in tears, vowed immutable constancy. After an absence of seven days the prelate hastened back to his charmer, but found himself supplanted by a young nobleman in the neighborhood. In the bosom of a friend the reverend lover poured forth his sighs and tears. "Perfidious woman," exclaimed he; "an absence of seven days sufficed to make her violate the most solemn vows!" "My Lord," replied the confidant, "this is one of the natural evils of non-residence."

English Fogs.—The fogs of England have been at all times the complaint of foreigners. Gondomar, the Spanish Ambassador, when some one who was going to Spain waited on him to know if he had any commands, replied, 'Only my compliments to the sun, whom I have not seen since I came to England." Carraccioli, the Neapolitan minister here, a man of a good deal of conversation and wit, used to say, that the only ripe fruit he had ever seen in England were roasted apples, and in a conversatton with George II., he took the liberty of preferring the Moon of Naples to the Sun of England.

THE GERMAN STAGE.

The prevailing taste for music which characterises the civilized world, is in full force in Germany, and as in England and America, threatens to sink the legitimate drama into decay. The great productions of Schiller, Goethe, Körner, and Shakspeare, (translated) are rarely offered to the public, and require the assistance of some star or stars to draw together an audience sufficiently numerous to compensate the manager. The performance of Shakspeare's plays on the better German stages, are peculiarly gratifying to those who can appreciate the beauty of the translation; the vivid character of the poetry has lost nothing in the transposition, nor have the towering beauties and gigantic energies suffered one jot from the daring attempt. Schlegel, the translator of all Shakspeare's plays, has entered into the spirit of the great Bard, with all the soundness of German study, and the romantic genius of his nation, and having at his command the gems of the richest living language, he has in the perfection of his task distanced the competitors of other countries as well as of his own. The French translations by Ducis are thoroughly contemptible. The Dutch have made the attempt and taken Ducis for the model—"each viler than the other."

At the Burg Theatre at Vienna, Hamlet, Macbeth, Romeo and Juliet, and Richard the Third are frequently represented with powerful effect. The Burg Theatre is so called from its locality in the Imperial Palace or Burg, and is under the immediate patronage of the Emperor, who with the court and members of his family attend the performances almost nightly. The Stars of the German stage are collected on these boards. Madame Sophia Schroder, the mother of the great cantatrice Schræder-Devrient, is the Siddons of Germany; her deep conception of the character she personates, her splendid elocution and the majesty of her figure and bearing, stamp her an actress of the highest grade. Her lady Macbeth is now unrivalled. The Heroes of Shakspeare are represented by Herr Devrient, the husband of the above named vocalist, with masterly effect. His King Lear and Richard the Third are powerful delineations; he plays alternately at Vienna and Berlin, and shares the Histrionic crown with Herr Seydelmann of Stutgardt. There is an actor named Loewe whose performances of Hamlet, Edgar, and Romeo, afford great satisfaction, and though last not least in merit, we feel pleasure in recording the name of the lovely and accomplished Mademoiselle Peche, for whom the part of Ophelia has won a world of enthusastic admirers. There is a sorrowful tale blended in the history of this young lady, which we permit ourselves to lay before our readers. Some years ago the son of one of the wealthiest merchants of Vienna succeeded in gaining her affections and offered her his hand in marriage, she accepted his proposal on condition that he obtained the consent of his parents. Vainly did he plead to his father, and when he found his hope blasted by obdurate pride, he proposed to his ladylove to become his, by a clandestine marriage, this she refused. Despair crushed his heart—maddened his brain—he became a corpse, by his own hand—a corpse. The poor girl with difficulty survived the shock; pale and wan are the features that till then beamed with light and loveliness—she acts Ophelia to the life.

Although we have spoken entirely of Shakspearean representations, it must not be supposed that Germany has been deficient in Dramatic Poets. Schiller and Goethe have ceased to belong to that country alone, the whole civilized world claims a vested right in their transcendent effusions. They have also Lessing, (the author of Emilie Galotti) and Körner who exchanged the pen for the sword, and found a bloody grave at Lutzen, defending his country against Gallic tyranny. Kotzebue's dramas are well known, they are for the most part translated into English; Pizarro, the Stranger, and the Virgin of the Sun, are from his prolific pen.

The most celebrated living Dramatists of that country, are Grillparzer, Tieck, Angeli, Münch, and Raupach, the latter in his plays, shows himself an intense admirer of Shakspeare. He has written some beautiful tragedies on German History, in which the house of Hohenstauffen forms a leading feature. Corsair.

English Sporting Intelligence.

The present Racing Season in England promises to be brilliant; more horses are said to be in training, than at any former period. Their races have already commenced, but none of commanding importance have yet come off. We have returns from the March Meeting at Epsom, for which Englishmen are indebted to the liberality and exertions of Sir Gilbert Heathcote. It is considered rather too early in the season for racing, even in England, and the attendance upon the first Epsom was thin indeed. The sport is represented as not indifferent. Of the only race of general interest, we add the report, a favorite Derby nag being beaten in it by a filly entered in the Oaks.

Sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, with 50 sovs. added by Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Bart., M.P., for 3 yr. olds, 7st. 2lb., and 4, 8st. 10lb.; one mile; nine subs.

Capt. Williamson's b. f. by Emilius, out of Farce, 3 yrs	(Nat)	1
Sir G. Heathcote's bl. c. Oroonoko, 3 yrs	(Chapple)	2
Sir G. Heathcote's Larnaca, 4 yrs	(Buckle)	0
Mr. A. Smith's gr. g. Vasa, brother to Marotto, 3 yrs	(Moon)	0
Mr. Greatrex's ch. f. by The Colonel, out of Crutch's dam, 3 yrs	(Crouch)	0
Mr. Faulconer's Slender, 4 yrs	(Mann)	0
Mr. Dixon's ch. f. by Langar, out of Candia's dam, 3 yrs	(Pavis)	0
Capt. Gardnor's b. f. by Actæon, out of Mistletoe, 3 yrs	(Pettit)	0

Mr. Balchin's Barbarina was entered, but went amiss, and did not run.

From the indefinite and insignificant character of the betting we can only state that Larnaca, and Mr. Dixon's filly, were nearly equal favorites at about 3 to 1 each, the former, we believe, having the call. Vasa, who arrived from Tedworth about half an hour before the race in a particularly light pair horse van, made the first running, at as good a pace as he could make it, followed closely by Larnaca and the Crutch filly, Oroonoko lying up, and Mistletoe bringing up the rear, a position which she maintained round the turn, when she passed Dixon's filly and Slender; at the distance she reached the leading horses, and by running remarkably stout, kept in a good place to the end. After crossing the road the grey found the Farce filly and Oroonoko at his side, and at the distance they headed him, the filly with the lead; laid up with these were Larnaca, Crutch, and Mistletoe, and the five made a close and beautiful race to the Grand Stand, where Larnaca dropt off, and the Farce filly obtained a decisive lead, which she kept to the end, winning cleverly by nearly a length. The struggle for second place was admirable, the Crutch filly running the black colt in to about three parts of a length, and having but a slight advantage over Mistletoe. Larnaca and the grey were next, Mr. Dixon's filly seventh, and Slender last. The winner is in the Oaks, has a good engagement on Thursday in the Craven meeting, and is a promising filly; she was purchased of Mr. Thornhill, who also bred the Captain's Derby colt, Melbourne.

One result of this race, was that Oroonoko, from 55 to 1 against him, has receded to 200 to 1, thus taking up a modest position on the outside. We have not room for all the betting this week. Few changes of moment have taken place since our last; The Dey of Algiers and Tros, both by Priam, are creeping up, and Brother to Bay Middleton has receded a little.

The question of who is to be the first favorite for the Chester Cup is every day a complete lottery. At one time we have King Cole, and then Harkaway, and now King Cole again. But it appears questionable whether others will not, ere long, be added to the front rank of favorites. We have now got Caravan, Cardinal Puff, and Van Buren, all treading closely upon the heels of the Irish horse. The Irish division are manœuvring in pretty style. At one time we had them taking 8 to 1, at another offering 9 to 1; indeed, the latter figure was offered frequently this morning. Cowboy is not in such good repute. Ion is in the same predicament; and this morning Vertumnus was backed at 20 to 1. The following are as nearly as possible the "prices current:"—

8 to 1 agst King Cole (t)	100 to 6 agst Cowboy
9 to 1 —— Harkaway (off)	100 to 6 —— Chit Chat
12 to 1 —— Caravan (t)	20 to 1 —— Ion
12 to 1 Cardinal Puff (t)	20 to 1 —— Vertumnus
12 to 1 Van Buren (t)	25 to 1 —— Zillah

Rattler has arrived in England, and a match has already been made on him for £500 aside, three mile heats, against Lady, "the Birmingham mare," to come off at Liverpool some time in May next. All our city readers of course recollect Rattler, and those in the country may refresh their memories on the subject, by referring again to our account of his great trot over the Beacon Course last October, in which he was beaten. On that occasion, he won the first heat in 7:54½, was close up in the second, of which the time was 7:50, made a dead heat of the third, time 8:02, and lost the fourth, time 8:24. Rattler sailed for England in February last, under the care of his old trainer, Bill Wheelan. He made a quick passage out, only seventeen days, in the ship Nicholas Biddle, and we are happy to hear has soon found a customer. Bell's Life only remarks of him that he "is said to have done three miles under eight minutes."

The Pytchley Hunt Races over the Northampton Course, were followed immediately by the Northampton Steeple Chase. The details occupy too much space for our columns, but it is exhilarating to read the account of the sports. The town was full of company, and some seventy noblemen and gentlemen gave a grand dinner, at which the Earl of Chesterfield presided. Count d'Orsay, George Payne, and George Osbaldiston were present, and were severally toasted. The Earl, Mr. Payne, and the "Squire" each made speeches, and toasted the farmers for their kindness and spirit in supporting them in hunting the country. The country ball followed, and you observe in the list of the company, the names of ladies found in the world of fashion. Every one appeared to enter into the sport with hearty good will, and before the chases were over, a subscription was set on foot, to get up a grand steeple chase for the next year, on the plan of the one which recently excited such a sensation at Liverpool.

The most brilliant affair in the English sporting world, is the revival of the ancient tournaments, of which, our information is derived from the "Morning Post." One is to be held at Eglintoun Castle, early in September next, and every thing is to be done to recal the splendor of the days of chivarly. The Earl of Eglintoun, with a liberality and spirit becoming his high station, has named the above period, and intends assembling his friends, not by tens, but by hundreds, and filling his ancient battlements with armed knights, esquires, and ladies fair. The festivities will continue upwards of a week, three days being devoted to the tilting, or charging with the ancient lance, which is of uncommon length, and considerably heavier than the modern ones of the present day, and this will, of course, be made known to those stranger knights who, it is confidently asserted, will throw down the gauntlet, and demand the right to display their prowess.

The knights, about 30 in number, will each be attended by two esquires, besides pages and numerous retainers. The following are some of the noblemen and gentlemen already knighted:—The Duke of Beaufort, Marquess of Waterford, Earl of Dunmore, Earl of Craven, Earl of Hilsborough, Viscount Castlereagh, Lord Suffield, Lord Gardner, Lord Forester, Lord Alford, Lord Alfred Paget, Hon. Major Hennikker, Hon. Captain Maynard, Hon. C. Forester, Sir F. Johnstone, Captains Fairlie, Lamb, Houston, &c.

"The first a married man, with married daughters! Never mind, in these unchivalrous times we will not quarrel with those who support, or rather assist in reviving the knightly spirit of a by-gone day; but surely there must be a dame, bright, beautiful, and gay to gladden the victor with a smile, and for her sake we hope he may prove free to woo and win her; or why not group the fairest of the land to grace his brow with laurel—a Stanhope, Cowper, Stuart, Maynard, Paget, Forester, &c. We confess we should be sorry to encounter a Waterford, a Hilsborough, or a Castlereagh, if otherwise than peaceably disposed: like the fable of the frogs and boys, "what would be sport to them, we much fear, would be death to us."

"Lord Jocelyn will prove a recreant knight, having joined the 15th Hussars, intending shortly to proceed to India."

Bals costume, tableaux, and all sorts of diversions à l' ancienne règime, are to take place, and thus a rapid and uninterrupted succession memorialise this epoch in the advance of enterprise and chivalry.

We are sorry to announce the death of Mr. James Bowe, of the Turf Tavern, Doncaster, in the 42d year of his age. He expired early on Saturday morning, the 2d inst. A better judge never looked at a horse; as a proof of which he had the most unlimited confidence of Lord George Bentinck, and many other noble patrons of the turf. His stabling and accommodations for brood mares were on an extensive and splendid scale, and had the honor of containing several St. Leger winners, amongst which was Elis, the first that ever reached Doncaster per caravan. Grey Momus is also familiar to the same renowned stables. Mr. Bowe has left a wife and daughter, but no son to walk in a similar path.

By the death of Mr. Bowe, Vale of Belvoir, Delos, and Ishmaelite are disqualified for the Derby; and Estelle, Marie, and Quadroon for the Oats. Grey Milton is also disqualified for the High Ash, and a 200 sov. Stakes in the Craven Meeting, 1840; Grey Momus for the 300 sov. Stakes at Goodwood, 1839, and the four nominations for the Produce Stakes at Goodwood, 1840 and 1841. Unless coupled with other horses, all bets are off.

The business of Mr. Bowe, will be kept on by his widow in partnership with her brother, Mr. Samuel King, formerly trainer to the late Richard, Earl of Scarborough.

The late Mr. Richardson.—The turf has lost another snpporter in the death of Mr. William Richardson, of Meux Abbey, the father-in-law of Mr. William Scott. Mr. Richardson was for many years engaged on the turf, and was the breeder and owner of the well known racers—Brownlock, Lady le Gros, Hornsea, Albemarle, Flighty, &c. &c.

We are sorry to announce the death of Mr. Samuel Walker of Manchester, of enlargement of the heart.

The long-pending dispute between the Duke of Beaufort and Mr. Horlock, relative to the Badminton Hunt, has been amicably adjusted.

Narrow Escape of the Marquis of Waterford.—On Monday evening last, as the Marquis of Waterford was returning to town along the western road, driving "four in hand," when near Turnham-green the horses suddenly took fright, and proceeded at their utmost speed in the direction of Hammersmith, notwithstanding the strenuous exertions of the Noble Marquis and a gentleman sitting by his side to stop them. In their progress the carriage was swayed from side to side of the road, but fortunately did not come in contact with any of the numerous vehicles, and on their arrival near the Swan Tavern, Hammersmith, the spirited animals were checked, and eventually stopped, without any injury having been sustained.

A writer in the "Morning Post" discusses affairs at "the corner" with some point, and we copy a portion of one of his articles, as better for variety's sake, than quoting the usual odds from "Bell's Life."

TATTERSALL'S.

Sir—As the Morning Post has a very large number of sporting acquaintances, I crave your kind permission to endeavour, from time to time, to amuse some and enlightens others of them, and as the Derby this year is unusually dark, not a horse that has appeared in public being a better favorite than 25 to 1—indeed, I should hardly know which I could say would be absolutely backed at that price—I think my remarks may be particularly appropos, not only to the uninitiated in the art, but to the actual bookmaker.

I repeatedly hear discussions on bookmaking. To look at the odds so often quoted it looks so very easy, and with pen, ink, and paper, so it is. What a capital book a man might make if he could find people to take the exact bets that would suit him; but there is not only this difficulty, but a variety of other drawbacks and disadvantages to be added: for instance, last week a Mr. J. Bowe thought proper to depart this world at Doncaster; all the horses nominated by this gentleman are immediately struck out of their engagements, and all bets singly against these harses void, hence so much clear loss to the bookmaker. The owners of horses die, the men you bet with die. Again, I regret to say, I have an instance in the death, last week, of Mr. Walker, of Manchester, and then there is at least 10 per cent. to deduct for bad debts. The betting, however, on the whole, has been this last winter peculiarly favourable to the betters round, or bookmakers, there having been no less than 77 horses actually backed for the Derby. Now, although there is very little doubt in any body's mind that one of these 77 must win (that number comprising almost every horse in training), yet I believe I am correct in stating that one only can win.

With these preliminary observations I proceed to the more interesting portion of my discussion—to unravel the mysteries of the little room in the corner of "corner." It is early in the day to talk about prophecying the winner of the Derby (Monday, May 13, will do for that); at the same time I think my comments on the vast sums depending on some one or two of them, and the position in which they stand as to their prospective engagements, may not be unacceptable.

First, then, in the list, as has been the case at this season these ten years, and I presume will be the next ten, comes the own brother to the celebrated Bay Middleton, and a finer colt in my judgment has seldom been seen; he was a shade lower in the betting on Monday. There was at one period some doubt expressed as to which was the best in this stable. I think the fact, (which will not be denied) that this horse has been backed at least twice as much as the other two together, sufficient. This colt has, previous to the Derby, four engagements—the Great Riddlesworth, or the Jersey stakes (Lord Jersey having won it from time immemorial), the first; this he will win as a matter of course.

Flambeau, belonging to the noble owner of the unfortunate Rat-trap, is another horse that has been backed for a tremendous coup. His bow hocks are not pleasing to the eye, and some of the best judges do not praise his going. A very liberal supply of the "sinews of war" and nought else will keep him second favourite—four engagements previous. The Dey of Algiers, a Peelite, comes next; this horse, that never was at Newmarket until October, was then backed with some spirit: he has still many friends, and Ion's running for the great race last year has an effect in keeping him a favourite; he is, (like Ion) a short horse. No engagement, &c. The same reason will apply to Sir G. Heathcote's lot, which by the oi polloi has been backed for thousands; two trials in this stable have been reported; if either one or the other is correct, Sir Gilbert has no Amato this year. The "lot" have no engagements, &c.

Tros, a Newmarket nag, and son of Priam, is said to be able to fly; as, however, this is a species of proceeding not yet introduced at Epsom, I have little fear of standing against him. Three engagements, &c. Scott's lot next appears, which on paper certainly presents a formidable array:—Erin-go-bragh (no engagement, &c.,) has been at 14 to 1, is now 25; Zimmerman has been at 18 to 1, is now at 30 (one engagement); Epidaurus has been at 18 to 1, is now at 30 (two engagements); the Lord Mayor, by Pantaloon has been at 22 to 1, is now at 25 (no engagement); Accelerator having been at 22 to 1, is now at 40 (no engagement). All I can say is to the betters round, go on and prosper—never give up—do not be afraid, but bet against every one of them; Don Johns do not come out every day; and if the Scott's have another, depend he is not at Newmarket.

John Day's lot, cruelly curtailed by the death of Mr. S. Bowe, has not lately been a prominent feature. Westonian and Wapiti (no engagements, &c.), by much the best public animals of their year that appeared, are not just now in any favor, but I think one of them will re-appear. Bulwark has one engagement, which he must win; I believe him to be like Grey Momus, a hardy brute; his best performance was his beating Romania in October; he will be a better favorite. Meunier (no engagement) is the only dark one in his stable; he has been backed to win a very large stake indeed, but on Thursday receded from 18 to 25 to 1. As I profess to form a part of the public, and am not "in" the stable, this is of course to me, quite enigmatical!

The Duke of Cleveland's Kremlin is again a mystery; a beaten horse, and more than once to be at 20 to 1, is quite beyond me. Money makes the mare to go; he has one engagement, for which, if he be worth anything at all, he will of course make his appearance—nous verrons.

Gulnare is a favorite with his noble owner, but no one else; he is drawn too fine for my approval—a sort of beast to go like the devil T.Y.C. Two engagements. I presume Ilderim should come next in the betting. From his running once only at Ascot without preparation and winning, he was freely backed; since then he has been respectively at 16 and 40 to 1, being now nominally at 25. Having four engagements the public will have ample opportunity of judging for themselves. Lord Jersey's Cain colt is out of the betting.

Æther is a small horse, but the best looking of the Duke's three; from his stoutness and progressive improvement in his public performances I should give the preference to Montreal at 50 to 1, rather than to Æther at 35. Æther has one engagement; Montreal three.

Derrynane was fired in November for ringbanes; his action was not improved in the judgements of the influentials, and, in spite of a desperate attempt in January last to prop him, he has vanished from the weekly quotations. Derrynane has two engagements.

The Brother to Plenipo and Vernon are still at about 50 to 1, with very few friends. The former is a considerably smaller horse than his relative, but as he is in the Column with the advantage of opponents dead and out of training he will probably be a winner before the day; Vernon is considered the image of Caravan. Each three engagements.

Boz, I regret to add, is quite undeserving the celebrity of his namesake; but Bloomsbury is destined to come again, although in his solitary engagement he has the formidable competitors of B. B. Middleton and Epidaurus.

Ferryman, it is currently reported, is very lame.

Camellino, with the advantage of being trained on Royal ground, is a rare instance of a winner of the Prendergast, being absolutely friendless at 40 to 1. I have no hesitation in saying that at the price this is the cheapest horse in the market. No engagements, &c.

I have now mentioned about 30 horses. To continue the catalogue, and include Mountaineer, Melbourne, Mr. Thornhill's lot, &c., would be at present quite unprofitable to all. Their day will come if ever they have one.

To the public—I would add that it is safer and most prudent to back horses with no engagement; except in extreme cases, they are sure to be kept artificial favourites. I have only to instance Lanercost for the St. Leger last year, and the ridiculous proceedings on that occasion. With this small piece of advice, Mr. Editor, your most obedient, JUDEX.

We have several other items in the way of sporting intelligence, wherewith to amuse the reader; but lo! the long table which we have this week given, has engrossed so much of our room, that we must perforce end here our summary.

LIVINGSTON (Ala.) SPRING RACES.

An Extra Spring Meeting commenced on the Picton Course on the 26th ult.; the materials of the annexed report are derived from a letter from the Secretary, Mr. J. J. JEWELL. The following gentlemen comprised the Officers of the Club during the meeting:—Col. John Long, Col. J. Marable, and Thos. J. Darnell, Esq., Judges; Dr. Wm. A. Leland, and J. C. McGrew, Esq., Assistants; Col Wm. R. Peyton, and J. J. Jewell, Esq. Timers.

TUESDAY, March 26, 1839—Subscription Purse $400, free for all ages, 3 yr. olds carrying 86lbs.—4, 100—5, 110—6, 118—7 and upwards, 124lbs.; mares and geldings allowed 3lbs. Three mile heats.

Col. R. H. Long's ch. h. Big John,* by Bertrand, dam by Hamiltonian, 6 yrs	1	1
Maj. J. J. Burton's ch. f. Miss Meadows, by Stockholder, dam by Timoleon, 4 yrs	2	2
Jackson & Lacy's ch. h. William, by Sir William, dam by Roanoke, 5 yrs	dist.

* B. J. carried 5lbs. extra, and won in a trot.

The Secretary writes us that the 1st mile of the 1st heat was run in 2:01—the 2d in 1:54; in the 3d Big John was pulled into a trot, to enable the filly to get within her distance. The winner in the 2d heat ran the 1st mile in 1:53 and the 2d in 1:54½; when he was again pulled up for the reason expressed above. He was in fine order, and if put up, could have made a very capital race.

WEDNESDAY, March 27—Proprietors' Purse $300, conditions as before. Two mile heats.

Col. R. H. Long's gr. h. Rasp, by Imp. Fylde, dam by Director, 5 yrs	1	1
Maj. J. J. Burton's bl. f. Black Rose, by Imp. Leviathan, dam by Arab, 4 yrs	2	2

Time, 3:57½—4:04½.

What Rasp is this? Not Capt. EUBANK's, surely. The old gentleman wrote us from Stonesville, Va., last Spring, that he had a Fylde colt of this age, that promised to take Steel's place, as he was a rasp-er, "and no mistake." His Rasp, however, he wrote us, was a bay colt, and out of Fly, a Rattler mare. Col. LONG's Rasp appears to be rather a hard customer; where did he pick him up?

THURSDAY, March 28—Proprietors' Purse $150, conditions as before. Mile heats.

Maj. John J. Burton's ch. f. Castianira, by Imp. Leviathan, dam by Stockholder, 4 y.	1	1

JOHN F. MILLER, Esq. of New Orleans, has bought Harpalyce of Mr. GREEN, for $1000. She is a 4 yr. old ch. f. by Collier, dam by Sea Serpent.

A Decision.—We, the undersigned, to whom was submitted the question "whether a horse that is drawn, is equal to one that starts but is distanced in the same heat, as follows:—

A	1	1
B	2	dr.
C	3	dist."

give it as our opinion that the horse that starts is the best; 1st, because, had there been P.P. bets between them on the heats, the drawn horse would have lost—and secondly, because the horse that started had a chance to win the purse, while he that was drawn had none. WM. J. MINOR,

New Orleans, March 23, 1839. THOS. JEFFERSON WELLS.

Emphasis.—A writer on English grammar gives the following example on wrong emphasis:—A clergyman, on reading the twenty-seventh verse of the eighteenth chapter of the first book of Kings, generally placed the emphasis on the words denoted by italics. "And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me, the ass, and they saddled him!

A Sure-footed Animal.—Said a purchaser to a horse-dealer, "Is that animal sure-footed?" "Perfectly," replied the jockey, "when he puts his foot down, you would think he never was going to take it up again."

A CAPITAL JUDGE OF HORSE-FLESH.

AN ANECDOTE.

When I was a young man—that is to say, younger than I am now, though I don't want to pass for an old one yet—I often thought myself wide awake, when I was really napping. Above all things, I imagined that I had a very pretty knowledge of horse-flesh. Not that I was then much of a rider, but, when I got a horse, I regularly studied the animal. Business kept me rather close at the desk, and it was only on a Sunday I could take a ride. I wanted confidence at first, and the difficulty was in getting a-stride at the livery stables, just when nobody happened to be looking; as I took many an excursion, before I could systematically recollect which side of the horse I ought to mount. Often would I converse on the state of the roads and the weather with the groom at the yard, not liking to confess my ignorance, till he would ask me again and again if I was ready. Then gradually approaching the head of the animal, I watched which side the fellow inclined to, for fear I should make a mistake and get laughed at. Once I purposely left my whip in the stable, and sending the man for it, made a desperate spring at the saddle, contriving to precipitate myself over the beast's shoulder into a green puddle before he returned. Well, this has nothing to do with my story. It is little use to tell you of all the tumbles I had. In time I became a better horseman—was seldom on the wrong side of the road, and could put my hand in my pocket to pay a turnpike without my steed running away with me and bolting the toll. When I was taken into partnership in Holborn—you know the old shop, gentlemen—I married Mrs. Higgins, my present wife that is; so I thought, as I lived at Pentonville, it might be as well to buy a nag; and now, remember, I imagined myself a pretty good judge. I certainly was not a novice, having ridden some fifty or sixty steeds in my time, not keeping exactly to the same livery-stable, for I often found the grooms rather impertinent, and fancied they might be inclined to play me a trick, by giving me a vicious animal. Well, as I was saying, I made up my mind to keep a nag, and of course it was as well to have a nice quiet beast; so I advertised, "Wanted a horse for an elderly gentleman," though I was barely five-and-twenty; but then, though remarkably fond of riding, I was not going to put myself on a skittish young thing only fit for a jockey. I had many answers to my advertisement, as you may suppose. Such an assortment as I had to choose from! I was rather abashed when some of the knowing coves asked me if I wanted the horse for myself; but I swore it was for my grandfather. Then such a character every animal had—one would have thought there was a particular breed of mares kept for foaling old gentleman's horses. The celebrated cross-breed between a "lamb and an arm-chair," for gentleness and comfort, was nothing to these invaluable cobs. Actually fatigued with the great variety that was each day offered to my choice, I at length pitched upon a bay gelding with two white legs and a spot of the same complexion right between its eyes. This horse was a most tractable creature; at least, so said the dealer I bought it from; he was sure my grandfather would be delighted with it. "My eyes! sir," said he, "if the old gen'lemen vont tip you summut uncommon ansome for gittin him sich a prad! He can go any pace at all, if you vant him; but if you are for a quiet ride, you can hardly get him to put vun foot afore the tother. He'll open any gate in the lanes that's not double-locked; and as to mounting easy, why the old nobleman, what owned him last, used to have him brought up to his bed-room and ride him down stairs." Of course I did not believe all the man's story, because it is pretty well understood that when you buy a horse you get a few lies into the bargain; but I was very well pleased with my purchase, and rode him to Pentonville. I suppose the creature thought it was for a 'quiet' pace that morning; in truth, it wasn't much more than a walk I got him to, and I was suddenly struck with the idea that he was rather old. The only vivacity the animal showed was in shying at anything that happened to startle it. Then, after making two or three flounders, it would come to a dead halt.

At last we arrived at Battle-bridge. Some thirty years ago, in that interesting locality, there was a murmuring stream, which rippled over a bed of murdered kittens and deceased cats and dogs, rather curiously interspersed with broken crockery. Well, here my steed came to a stand; pass it he would not; and when I belaboured him with my stick, he commenced a retrogade movement which, had I continued my exercise over his shoulder, would certainly have taken me back to Holborn.

In the midst of my difficulty, a good-natured old Irishman, who kept an apple stall by the road side, came to my assistance. "And your honor's got a bad baste of it," said he, pulling off his coat, as if he was going to fight; "I jist do that, your honor, to save me jacket from being tore, for it's ugly large teeth the baste has." With this remark, he got hold of the bridle, and commenced pulling with all his might. His precaution in taking off his coat showed extraordinary foresight, so far as the preservation of his ragged garment was concerned; but a terrible bite the brute gave him! "Aisy, now; arn't you a big blackguard to be making your teeth meet in my flesh! Is it banes you takes me to be?—for you couldn't graze, you old divil, you couldn't. Your long tooth wouldn't let you." Paddy was right enough; the jockey had done me. But I must make short of a long story. The apple-stall proprietor and I got the beast past the water, he by pulling and I by thrashing. I gave the poor fellow half-a-crown, and he assured me that he'd be proud and delighted to be bit that same, any day I was passing, for the likes. Wouldn't it be a bite for his childer, six motherless orphans, and a sup for himself to my honor's good health. Mr. Higgins gave an imitation of the Patlander with great accuracy, throwing into it a slight dash of the Yorkshire dialect; an ingenious contrivance, supposed by some ninnies, to give much force to the delineation of a true Irishman. The company having charged their glasses, the landlord taking equal care to perform that operation in another sense, the equestrian continued:—I got home to Mrs. H. late that evening, for I had dined in town, and, as you gentlemen are aware, lost much time on the road. My only regret afterwards was, that I had not delayed my return till night-fall, for my wife unfortunately got sight of the bestrode. I never spent such an uncomfortable evening in my life. "And is this the horse you were to get a gig for, to drive me out on Sundays!—Very well, Mr. H., you've saved your money one way, in buying that old thing; and now you may save it another, for no gig do I want, to go about with a horse showing those awkward long teeth, and that great patch of white on the forehead, like a bald-faced cow—and those ugly ragged hoofs! I'm quite ashamed to see you ride it, let alone being drawn all over the country by such a brute.' Mrs. Higgins said this and much more, for she too considered herself a judge of horse-flesh, as her papa farmed his own estate in Hertfordshire, and she had a pony of her own before she could recollect. I was quite put out, and for the first time since our marriage we quarrelled. The boy, after bedding down my precious bargain, laid the cloth for supper; but I had lost my appetite. I said the roasted potatoes were burnt to a cinder; Mrs. H. declared, that if anything, they were not done enough: I swore the butter was salt, and she insinuated that I was fresh, or I should not have been so taken in by a horse-dealer. Then came on some very pertinent remarks about not being able to drive out like other people, and about some person of her acquaintance who had been foolish enough to marry a man who could not keep his wife out of the dirt of the roads. There is no use, gentlemen, in dwelling on a matrimonial squabble; it maks any dwelling disagreeable. I went to bed sick of my horse, my wife, my very existence. The first news I had next morning was that I had been rid of one of these incumbrances;—not my wife, for she was slumbering by my side; not my existence, gentlemen, as I need not inform you; but of my horse. The boy swore that he had secured the stable, and whether the beast had the knack of undoing fastenings, as the jockey informed me, I know not; but from saddle, and bridle, and horse-cloth going with him, I supposed he was stolen—Mrs. H. said, in mistake for my neighbor's steed, which she declared was "really a decent one." I said nothing to save words; but determined after breakfast to find out the scoundrel who had sold me the animal, and abuse him while the merits of the purchase were fresh in my memory. Of course he was not to be heard of; perhaps he had mounted the old horse and the two rips had gone off together. Let that be as it might, I was thirty pounds out of my pocket, and still in want of an elderly gentleman's cob.

Mrs. H. insisted, as I was such a bad jockey, that she must see my next choice before the bargain was struck; and in the course of a week, having again advertised, for I would not trust those rascally stable-keepers, I was waited on by a steady-looking elderly man, who assured me he had just the kind of roadster I should like: a fine bay gelding, price thirty-five pounds; it was my highest figure.

The next morning Mrs. H. came to town by the stage, and I took her to see the animal. She looked very knowingly at it. "Open the mouth," said Mrs. H. "Ah! there are the marks what my pa used to show me in my pony when I lived at the farm—the horse is young." "Yes, ma'am," said the old gentleman. "I'm a farmer myself, and I like to see a lady know something of horse-flesh." "Hertfordshire!" asked my wife. "Next county to it," replied the respectable agriculturist. I, the while, was looking at the horse, and had every reason, as I thought, to be satisfied. The coat was as smooth as velvet, gentlemen, and a beautiful bay colour; the hoofs were black and shining, and not a white spot about him; the teeth, unlike those which had been met in poor Pat's arm, were short, and bearing, as Mrs. H. declared, the right marks. The bargain was struck—my wife returned to Pentonville per stage; and I, that evening, bought another saddle and bridle wherewith to ride home my new purchase. Gentlemen, but that you all know I am now a capital judge of horse-flesh, and that I don't mind a laugh at my youthful inexperience, I should not venture to tell the rest of my story. As I rode along, I thought it a very strange coincidence that the paces of my present horse should be exactly like those of the last. The animal had the same habit of starting, jumping, rather than running, a few yards, and then halting. What the devil is the matter? said I to myself; is it my manner of riding that won't let the horse go on—fretting it after this fashion I neared Battle-bridge—there sat the Irishman at his stall. We had continued our acquaintance, and he knew the loss I had sustained in his old antagonist. This new beast was now tossing up its head, snorting and shewing its teeth, though not the terrible grinders my other Bucephalus exhibited, still looking full of bite, and pass the stream he would not. The man stood aghast, and no wonder. Though not naturally superstitious, even I was beginning to think that every animal I rode was bewitched. "Have you bought him, your honor?" "Yes, Pat," said I, "and be hanged to him." "Shall I lay hold of his head and drag him past the water, as I did the last you'd the luck to git?—and sure this must be brother to that same, and it's a nat'ral dread they have of Battle-bridge.' I assented to Paddy's proposal, and this time, without taking off his coat, he approached the beast. It must have been mad, I do believe, for no sooner did the Irishman get the wretch up to the stream, than I was flung from the saddle, and went to the dogs, cats, and kittens, under the bridge, while the brute's teeth fastened on Pat's arm. The poor fellow roared out lustily, but didn't let go his hold on the bridle. "It's the same horse entirely, sir; I know it by the bite, though they've been filing his teeth, and doctoring him. Just look at his head, too, and his legs!—they've been straning 'em. Oh! ain't I up to the tricks of thim jockeys!—wasn't I stable boy meself to the biggest rogue in all Ireland!" I got out of the ditch into which I'd been thrown; and the horse, after a good cudgelling, underwent our united investigation. It was plain enough—I had been done—doubly done. I immediately returned to the public house, where the "respectable farmer" put up, accompanied by Pat and a constable. The fellow was "gone into the country." I sold my five-and-thirty pounds purchase for nine. Mrs. H. has never since boasted of her judgment in horse-flesh; and many's the time, as I've stopped on the top of a coach, near Pat's stall, has he asked me when I was going to buy another horse, and we'd ther it wouldn't be as well, if I was for getting a proper baste, to make quite sure that the "ould un" was dead. There, gentlemen, open confession is good for the soul. I don't pretend to be wiser than my neighbors, but I should like to see a jockey do me now!—and with these sagacious remarks ended Mr. Higgins' narrative.

London Monthly Miscellany for March.

LONGEVITY OF THE DOG AND THE HORSE.—OLD BILLY.

A notion has been long, and I believe, generally entertained, that the period of life naturally allotted to quadrupeds, is 7 times the length of their state of immaturity; or, in other words, if we suppose the dog, for instance, to reach his growth in two years, he will live fourteen—if at least this hypothesis be correct, and I feel inclined to believe it both in the dog and horse. The horse does not attain maturity till he has completed his seventh year: consequently he would live, if consigned to the mere uninfluenced operations of nature, till he was 49. But, in order to place the subject correctly before the reader, it will be necesarry to observe, in this place, that when I speak of the longevity of the horse and dog, as extending to seven times the period occupied in their progress to maturity, I exclude those deteriorating influences which the semi domestication of these two highly interesting and very elegant quadrupeds have entailed upon them. A dog subjected to extraordinary exertion becomes worn out before he has reached his fourteenth year; a pointer regularly used to range the moors, beat the enclosures, &c., manifests every symptom of advanced life by the time he has completed his ninth year, if not before—such as deafness, defective sight, &c. If we look at the fox hound, whose discipline is more severe, and whose exertions are more exhausting, we shall perceive that by the time he reaches his seventh year, he is no longer able to run up to or with the pack; and so in regard to the horse, if he be over-strained or over-worked, particularly in early life, he becomes exhausted accordingly.

The racer, subjected as he is to the severe discipline of the training-stable, and the desperate struggles of the course, and that too in early life, uniformly shows a premature old age—the one being the inevitable result of the other, amounting merely to cause and effect. Of all our racing stallions not one has reached his 49th year; Bay Bolton died in 1756, aged 31 years; Competitor, the last surviving son of Eclipse, lived to be thirty years old—he died December 29, 1836; Matchem died Feb. 21, 1781, aged thirty-two years; Sampson died in 1777, aged thirty-two years; most of the racing stallions died at much earlier periods.

On the score of longevity, "Old Billy" stands alone, far removed from the whole of his kind. On Tuesday, June 11, 1822, I visited Latchford Lock, about a mile from Warrington, for the sole purpose of seeing, or looking over, a horse which had absolutely attained his sixty-third year, and was then rising sixty-four! The horse belonged to the Mersey and Irwell Navigation Company, and at the time I saw him his teeth in front were perfect, but of an extraordinary length; while his bridle teeth, or tusks, after having grown unusually long had become somewhat inverted, describing an ill defined semi-circle, which convexed towards the upper jaw. His lower lip was neither so loose nor so pendulous as what is generally seen in very old horses. His eye was very remarkable: it appeared to be differently placed in the socket to those of all other horses which have fallen under my observation; at the same time it appeared so clear, and presented altogether so perfect an appearance, as to afford a well founded presumption that his sight was very little, if any, impaired. He was under fifteen hands, and when in full flesh and in the vigour of life he would scarcely have reached that height. His ears had undergone the barbarous (and now obsolete) practice of cropping. His colour was a dun chesnut, dappled in earlier life; one hind foot white.

When "Old Billy" grew too inactive for his tedious and jading labour, his owners, in reward for long services, turned him out during summer in the luxuriant pasturage of Warrington Meadows, and in winter he was taken into a comfortable stable, and fed on mashes and soft food. I saw him in the meadows, in company with some young stock, with which, it seems, he could still make a hobbling gallop. He appeared to possess the use of his limbs in extraordinary perfection, considering his age; he could lie down and rise with ease. He died the following winter.

"Old Billy" was bred by a Mr. Edward Robinson, of Wilgrave Farm, in Woolston, a short distance from Warrington. When young, and indeed till he reached the age of fifty, he manifested an extremely vicious disposition, not only to human beings, but to dogs, or any other animals which happened to oppose his progress or stand in his way; and this was particularly shown when, at the dinner hour or other periods, a cessation from labour took place. He was impatient to get into the stable on such occasions; and would use very savagely, either his heels or his teeth to remove any living impediment, whether pig, dog, or child, that happened by chance or otherwise to be placed in his way. Thirty years of his life were spent in a gin, and the remainder principally on the Mersey and Irwell navigation, in towing boats. His appearance indicated a union of the Cleveland and genuine Eastern bloods. T.B.J.

Bell's Life, Feb. 17.

THE ART OF SWIMMING.

My female pupils in the art of swimming were first, Mrs. Gill, whose husband also attended; the Duchess of Cirella and her daughter: Madame Isoard and sister, (General Isoard was intendant on the arsenal,) the Duchess of Parabita; Countess Suini, of Milan; Countess of Battaglini, of Rimini, and several others. They all had dresses, that is a waistcoat and trousers of dark brown flannel—the gentlemen drawers. Every morning at six we met at the house of Isoard, at Isoard, at Santa Lucia, and provided with every thing requisite for a good breakfast, except figs, oranges, and other delicious fruits which we gathered on the spot, we embarked and passed over to a grotto under Posilipo.

The limpid water of the grotto we selected, gradually became shallower towards its extremity, which was of fine white sand, and then a clean surface of tuffo rock, on which the ladies undressed and put on their swimming garments. The men perfomed these operations in the boat, aloof from the grotto. On the top of the grotto, was a beautiful little farm house, accessible from the sea by a stair cut in the side of the rock. Here we got fruit, and new laid eggs, and fire to make our tea and coffee. Mrs. Gill was the first to swim alone. The very first time she entered the water, she leaped of a ledge of the rock into a depth of twenty feet: her husband and I being prepared to receive her. By following the plan adopted by Rochow, when I took him across the Tiber, I carried her and the other ladies from the grotto, across deep water, to a rock a hundred yards distant. One morning, Mrs. Gill thought that she could do the like by another pupil; so placing Miss Isoard, a fine strong girl of eighteen, on her shoulders, off she swam with her towards the rock. They had not got half way, when Mrs. Gill imprudently began to joke her companion on her courage, observing that they were then in water forty feet deep. Miss Isoard began to tremble and to lift herself more above the water, so as to press Mrs. Gill under it. At last she became so alarmed as to clasp her round the neck, and both went down together. I hastened to the spot, and was just in time to save them; but it was a dangerous moment; for both of them having lost all presence of mind, seized hold of me, one by the hair, the other by the throat, scratched my face and neck, and still clung to each other. No time was to be lost. I forcibly pulled them asunder, and not being able to carry them both, I left Mrs. Gill, who could swim, to shift for herself, and she was the next instant joined by her husband, and I carried off Miss Isoard and got her safe into port. This affair did not interrupt our delightful and healthful amusement, but it convinced me of the danger of allowing any person to commence learning to swim, except in the way recommended by the sagacious Benjamin Franklin, that is, wading from a shelving beach into the water, until it reaches the shoulders, and then turning the face towards the shore, endeavour to dive and pick up a white stone, placed between the swimmer and the beach. This was the plan I had began by adopting; there is no other anything like so safe and also so efficacious.

Long before this period I had bethought me of having recourse to mechanical means to enable me to swim with far more ease and speed, than unaided nature will allow us. In the first place, I found that by rubbing my body all over with oil or pomatum, I not only slipped better through the water, as does a ship with a smooth bottom, but the soddening and weakening effect upon the muscles of long immersion was very much reduced. To increase my power of impingement on the water, I first attached to the soles of a pair of laced boots, flaps of wood on hinges, just like those of a Pembroke table; so that the flaps closed and opened alternately as I drew up or struck out my feet. But I found that the operation of swimming in our species, and in that of a frog, are essentially different. The frog is propelled by the flats of his webbed feet: we advance by the oblique action of the inner portions of legs and feet, in the way of "sculling" with an oar at the stern of a boat. I altered my foot apparatus accordingly, and instead of two flaps to each foot, I only used one. This I applied to stationary pieces of board, ascending upwards over the ancles, which were admitted into it and saved from the pressure by holes. At the bottom of these boards, flaps were attached by brass hinges, but so arranged that they could only move outwards twenty degrees, and inwards forty-five. This simple apparatus can be put into the pocket, and attached to the ankles by straps and buckles in a minute; such of my readers as ever try it will be surprised at the increase of power it will give them in the water. Man is a two-legged animal, his arms can do but little service in the action of progression. Our power is in the legs and thighs. I also made gloves of calico, which upon expanding the fingers and thumb, filled up the spaces between, like the webs in the feet of a duck: but it soon fatigues the fingers, which, however, may be expanded only on emergencies. Being thus equipped, I have often astonished persons in a boat, after which I have swam so rapidly as to make them think for a moment that I was towed after them by a rope.

When bathing is merely performed for the sake of its healthful or cleansing effects, it may be best to enter the water early in the day, and fasting, as physicians usually prescribe. But persons of delicate constitutions are ordered by the Italian doctors to bathe at noon, after the water has been warmed by the sun. For the information of those who swim for amusement, and, as it were gymnastically, I beg to state, that they will be able to swim many times as far again, and dive, and hold their breath much longer, if they go into the water after having taken a nourishing meal and drank a bottle of strong wine. The abstraction of caloric from the body, by the water, is enormous, and fuel is required to keep up the supply. The men who, at Naples, obtain a living by diving for "shell-fish," always drink at least a quart of good wine before entering the water, especially if it be chilly.

Life of Maceroni.

SKATING.

It is a common thing for parties of pleasure to go ahead from Ghent to Brugge on the canal, 24 miles in two hours at a stretch, and back again after dinner. The women and children of Brugge have a peculiarly comfortable method of getting along in this weather. They sit in a cradle chair with the sides and feet boxed in snugly to hold cushions, and placed on skating rails. This is pushed at full speed by a lad who runs behind, and in going down a bridge often jumps up, and adding his weight, skates away for several perches. Not one of these handy little sledges are to be seen in Ostende, Ghent, or Brussels. The horse sledges, the traineaux, with their merry bells, are everywhere in motion. Many are adorned with most comical gilt flying figure heads, of dragons, dolphins, swans, lions, unicorns, reindeers, devils, mermaids, and monsters of every kind. But Antwerp is the great metropolis of sledges. A gentleman who has just returned here from that city told me he counted, in a party of pleasure there, no less than 48 splendid sledges in a string, circumnaviskating the city; and one adventurous whip driving four horses tandem! You are quite in your infancy in the enjoyment of frost in England—merely up to snowballs and sliding. Imagine the glory of driving four-in-hand tandem up Regent-street, sitting on an immense gilt boa constrictor or rattlesnake, with carillon octaves in his tail! Pray give C—— a hint before the frost is gone. You can't imagine how low England lies in these points in continental estimation. They say there are not six men in England who have the courage to set a new fashion, even when it has been exported to them by the trouveurs of Paris, Berlin, &c., and not three who know how to originate any thing beyond a new stare!

CURIOUS HISTORY

OF A VIRTUOSO OF EUROPEAN CELEBRITY, AND SALE OF HIS GALLERY OF PICTURES.

The sale of this celebrated gallery, which, we believe, was the only private one of any note remaining in Paris, besides those of Marshal Soult and of the wealthy Spanish speculator, M. Aguado, commenced on the 18th, on which day and the following, seventy-eight pictures were sold, which yielded altogether 103,707f. The Roman Charity, of Guido, fetched 3,020f.; a little and scarcely finished composition of Parmesano, 500f.; the Omeganck, 7,350f.; a small repetition of Gerard's Belisarius, 3,750f.; and, after a brisk competition with Count Maison, a little sketch of Prudh'on's Venus and Adonis was knocked down to M. de Marsilly for 7,800f. The little Zephyr, of the same painter, was about to be obtained by an English amateur at 17,000f., when Count Maison stimulated his competitor, M. Guenin, who carried it for 21,050f. The same gentleman had the day before paid 5,100f. for the fine portrait of Rembrandt. Girodet's Galatee was bought for 14,000f., by M. Billaudel, a dealer in pictures. The liveliest competition was expected to take place for Canova's Magdalen, but it was affirmed that the French Government intended to secure that beautiful statue, and place it in the splendid church of the same name.

The late owner of this collection, M. de Sommariva, was born at Lodi. In 1795 he was a petty lawyer, exercising his craft at Milan. When, during Bonaparte's expedition to Egypt, the ascendancy of the French Republic declined in Italy, M. de Sommariva declared himself the partisan of France, and exposed himself to some danger by defending the persons and property of various French subjects in the courts of Lombardy. As soon as the arms of France re-asserted her authority, M. de Sommariva was appointed one of the three Directors of the Cisalpine Republic, in which exalted station he contrived to acquire, in a very short time, a fortune of 880,000*l.* The French Republic having become an Empire, and its Cisalpine sister a kingdom, Director Sommariva withdrew to Paris, after losing in some speculation about 240,100*l.* of his savings. There he was visited with serious apprehensions respecting his remaining 640,000*l.* He was in constant expectation of one of those bills which Napoleon occasionally drew upon large fortunes too rapidly amassed in the public service. Dreading what had befallen M. Ouvrard, and some other worthies, fear created the "Sommariva Gallery." To shelter his wealth he proclaimed himself the patron of the Fine Arts, and set about collecting paintings and statues. Little caring for old and foreign works he affected a preference for the French modern school. By employing Gerard, Girodet, David, and their pupils as his collectors, he secured the veneration of the artists of France, and the arts protected him more than he protected them. Napoleon spared his Cisalpine cash, but, to his great mortification, never would admit him into the "Legion of Honour."

M. de Sommariva left his gallery to an only son, who lately died without posterity and intestate, so that this fine collection is selling for some poor relations of Lodi. If terror had inspired what affection the father bore to the arts, the son openly hated them. The paternal gallery reminded him of many a mortification. Whenever he applied for a small sum, his sire replied, "Impossible! the arts ruin men;" and he pointed to a picture. It was a Zephyr of Prudh'on a Pygmalion of Girodet, a Belisarius of Girard, or a Physche of David, which had temporarily reduced, on such occasions, Sommariva to mendicity. Need it be added that all these pictures were the objects of detestation of the younger Sommariva, and that he would have sold them with less scruple than Charles Surface his limned ancestors. But when he succeeded to the fortune, the young Count Sommariva remembered, alas, that this gallery was the only trophy which gilded the rather recent escutcheon of nobility of his family, and that the pictures aforesaid were substitutes for the portraits of great ancestors, which other more ancient hidalgos possessed.

Slang of Artists.—The conversation of artists, when it has reference to their profession, is usually patched up with phrases peculiar to themselves, and which may not be improperly called slang of art. This jargon, when heard by persons unacquainted with its application, is apt to lead to awkward mistakes. A laughable instance of this kind occurred lately. A party of artists were travelling in a stage coach, in which, besides themselves, a sedate venerable lady was the only passenger. The conversation among the artists ran as follows:—"How playful those clouds are! That group to the left is sweetly composed, though perhaps a little too solid and rocky for the others. I have seen nothing of L——'s lately. I think he is clever. He makes all his flesh too chalky. You must allow, however, that he is very successful with his ladies." The old lady began to exhibit symptoms of uneasiness, and at the close of each observation cast an anxious and inquiring look at the speaker. Her companions, however, unconscious of the surprise they were exciting (for she entertained doubts as to their sanity), went on in the same style. She heard them, to her increasing dismay, talk of a farm house coming out from the neighboring trees, and of a gentleman's grounds wanting repose. At length they approached an old village church. A great many observations were made about the keeping, &c., of the scene, which the old woman bore with tolerable magnanimity, but at last one of the party exclaimed, in a kind of enthusiasm, "See how well the woman in the red cloak carries off the tower.' The lady screamed to the coachman to stop, paid him his fare, although advanced only half way on her journey, and expressed her thankfulness for having escaped alive from such a set of madmen.

Making Shifts.—A young lady married a very wild spark, who soon ran through a fortune, and was reduced to some straights. One day she said to her husband, "My dear, I want some shifts sadly." "D—me, madam," replied he, "how can that be, when we make so many every day."

Town Talk.—King Charles II. being in company with Lord Rochester and others of the nobility, Killigrew, the jester, came in. "Now," said the king, "we shall hear of our faults." "No, faith," said Killigrew, "I don't care to trouble my head with that which all the town talks of."

Road to Heaven.—A charitable divine, for the benefit of the country where he resided, commenced a large causeway, and as he was one day overlooking the work, a certain nobleman passed by—"Well, doctor," said he, "nowithstanding your pains and charity, I don't take this to be the highway to heaven." "Very true, my lord," replied the doctor; "for if it had, I should have wondered to meet your lordship here."

Pair of Spectacles.—Two brothers were to be executed for some enormous crime; the eldest was turned off first, without speaking; the other, mounting the ladder, began to harangue the crowd. "Good people," said he, "my brother hangs before my face, and you see what a lamentable spectacle he makes; in a few moments I shall be turned off too, and then you will see a pair of spectacles."

The Prince Regent Schooled by John Kemble.—His late Majesty, George the Fourth, while Prince of Wales, had contracted an affection, at that period very prevalent in fashionable circles, of giving to his words a wrong pronunciation. "Will you obleege me, Mr. Kemble," said he to the immortal John, "by giving me a pinch of snuff?" To this the tragedian replied, holding his box to the Prince, "Cannot your royal highness open your royal jaws and say oblige?"

Downhill Journey.—A gentleman lying on his death-bed, called his coschman, who had been an old servant, and said, "Ah, Tom, I am going a long and rugged journey, worse than ever you drove me." "Oh, dear sir," replied the fellow, "let not that discourage you; it is all down hill."

HOPES AND FEARS.

On his death-bed poor Simon lies,
His spouse is in despair;
With frequent sobs, and mutual cries,
They both express their care.
A diff'rent cause, says Parson Sly,
The same effect may give;
Poor Simon fears that he shall die,
His wife—that he may live.

☞ Gentlemen desirous of subscribing to the above stakes, will please address the subscriber at Baltimore, as early as convenient, as early entries induce others to enter to stakes to which they otherwise would not.

Trotting Purses.

In addition to the above Purses and Sweepstakes, the subscriber to amuse and gratify a large portion of the patrons of the Kendall Course, is induced to offer the following purses to be Trotted for:—

On the day previous to the races, a purse of $100, free only for horses which never won a purse, Mile heats best 3 in 5, under the Saddle; the entrance money to go to the 2d horse in the last heat.

Same day—A purse of $200, free only for horses which never won a purse of over $100, Mile heats in Harness; entrance money to go to the 2d in the last heat.

The Race Horses will have a track exclusively appropriated to their use, as also will the Trotting horses to theirs. The time of exercise will be so arranged that they will not be in the way or interference of each other. The track, and every thing appertaining to the course, will be put in the best possible order. Stables, litter, &c., will be furnished gratis to race and trotting horses, that visit the course for the purpose of racing or trotting, but the subscriber cannot promise to accommodate horses that are brought for sale or show. He will promise good stables, &c., for 65 or 70—possibly a few more.

The liberal patronage of the public has inspirited the subscriber to offer greater inducements than formerly. He will hereafter hold out still greater inducements each Spring and Fall than have heretofore been offered in this section of the country.

CINCINNATI JOCKEY CLUB RACES

THE SPRING MEETING for 1839 will come off under the following new arrangement, on the third or fourth week in May.

First day—Ohio Breeders' Plate, value $200, added to a Sweepstakes of $50 each, h. ft., for 3 yr. olds bred in Ohio, Mile heats; to name by the 20th March, 1839.

Same day—Proprietors' Purse $100, free for anything, Mile heats. A Sweepstakes of $50 each, h. ft., to name by the 20th March, 1839, is proposed to be run for with the Purse.

Second day—Cincinnati Gold Cup, value $500, for 3 yr. olds, Mile heats, added to a Sweepstakes of $100 each, h. ft.; to name by the 20th March, 1839.

Third day—Buckeye Plate, value $500, added to a Sweepstakes of $200 each, h. ft., free for all ages, Two mile heats; to name by the 20th March, 1839.

Fourth day—Jockey Club Purse $500, with a Sweepstakes of $500 each, h. ft., added, Three mile heats; to name by the 20th March, 1839.

Fifth day—Proprietors' Purse $500, for 3 yr. olds, added to a Sweepstakes of $200 each, h. ft., Two mile heats, to name by the 20th March, 1839.

Sixth day—Jockey Club Purse $1000, added to a Sweepstakes of $1000 each, h. ft., Four mile heats; to name by 20th March, 1839.

The preceding plan, to get up handsome Sweepstakes for our next Spring Meeting, promises to meet with great encouragement from Breeders. Attaching them, as we have done, to the Purses, gives us a surety of a race. The subscribers to the stakes will have an equal chance for the purses with those entering in the usual way, the evening previous to the race, an entry not in the sweepstakes can win the purse only, but an entry in the stakes may win both purse and stakes. Winners of plates are not prohibited from running for the purses. It is therefore arranged that the winner of the Cincinnati Gold Cup may start for the 3 yr. old Purse of $500, Two mile heats, and the winner of the Buckeye Plate may start for the Four mile Purse.

All entries must be enclosed to GEO. N. SANDERS, P. M., Grass Hills, Carroll County, Ky. Nominations made previously to the 20th day of March, may be changed up to the time of closing.

We have at great expense established the Cincinnati Race Course, contiguous to the city, and under the patronage of a highly respectable and numerous Club. Some additional improvements will be made, and our stables increased to give good accommodation to one hundred horses. There are already one or more entries to each proposition, and from the number of 3 yr. olds in the country, we anticipate at least twenty entries for the Cincinnati Gold Cup, and have assurances of a great number of entries to the other stakes.

MEDOC.

THE services of this fine horse are again offered to the Breeders of Kentucky He will remain at his old stand at Col. Wm. Buford's, Woodford County, where he will be let to mares at One Hundred Dollars each, to be paid in the season, which will end on the first of July next. He will be limited to seventy-five mares. Every attention will be paid to mares sent to him, and excellent blue grass pastures furnished gratis. We recommend him with great confidence, believing that he has proven himself equal, if not superior as a breeder, to any horse that has ever appeared in the United States. His first season was made when he was only five years old, and last year his colts appeared on the turf for the first time, at 3 yrs. old, and numbered Sixteen Winners at all distances, from One to Four mile heats. The time made in these races will compare with any upon record. (See the race of Maria Duke and Curculia at Louisville last Spring, Mile heats best 3 in 5, each heat run in 1:48—Picayune and Musedora's race at Crab Orchard, in August, Three mile heats, run in 5:57—5:55—5:54,—Curculia's race at Lexington, Two mile heats, 3.52—3:52—3:54, distancing the field, track heavy.)

Out of the dams of these 16 colts, not one, except the dam of Curculia, ever produced a race-horse before. Nine of his colts have been sold for $23,500, viz; Curculia, $5000, Maria Duke $4000, Medoca $3000, Sthreshley $2500, Picayune $2000, Musedora $2000, J. F. Robinson $2000, Filly out of the dam of Ironette, $2000, and Ben Harrison $1000, when a yearling.

His colts are remarkable for their gaiety, beauty and symmetry, and as a strong evidence of their fine appearance, they have had awarded to them more premiums at the Fairs in this part of Kentucky, than the colts of all other horses together have received. Medoc's blood and performances on the turf, have been published in all the sporting journals of the United States, to which reference may be made. We wish, at this time, to present him as a very distinguished breeder, and hope that he will receive that consideration and patronage to which he is entitled.

ENVOY.

THIS thorough-bred and magnificent imported horse will stand next season at the stable of LEWIS K. GRIOSBY, near Winchester, Clark County, Kentucky, and will be let to mares at Fifty dollars the season, and $1 to the groom. Enclosed and extensive pasture of the best kind has been provided, and all possible care and attention will be paid to mares left with the horse, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes, should any occur. The season money will be due and payable when the mares are taken away.

ENVOY'S Pedigree.—Envoy was got by Mignon, out of Zarina (bred by Lord Anson, and foaled in 1827,) by Morisco—her dam Ina (bred by Sir John Byng in 1821) by Smolensko—Morgiana by Coriander, out of Fairy by Highflyer—Fairy Queen by Young Cade—Routh's Black Eves by Crab. [See Skinner's General Stud Book, page 657.] Memnon, the sire of ENVOY, was bred by Mr. Watt in 1822; he was got by Whisker, (brother to Whalebone, Wire, Woful, etc.,) out of Manuella, the dam of The Abbott, Belzoni, Margellina, Nitocres, Belshazzar (lately imported to this country) and other first raters. Manuella was got by Dick Andrews, her dam Mandane by Pot-8-o's, out of Young Camilla, sister to Colibri [See General Eng. and Am. Stud Book, page 687.] It will be seen that Envoy's pedigree combines the purest and most fashionable blood on the side of both sire and dam; his distinguished ancestry were celebrated as winners at long distances, carrying heavy weights; the stock of both his sire and dam are remarkable for their beauty, speed, and stoutness, winning at all distances, and training on.

Description of ENVOY'S Sire, the renowned MEMNON.—He was foaled in 1822; in 1824, when 2 yrs. old, he won his two races, and the next year, at the York Spring Meeting, he won the St. Leger Stakes, and at Doncaster, on Tuesday, 25th Sept., he won the Great St. Leger Stakes of 25 sovs. each, 88 subscribers, of which 30 started; he won it so easily, that none but he and his great antagonist, The Alderman, were placed. He won many other races at all distances

Description of ENVOY.—He is now 5 years old, and was imported from England by the Hon. WM. WILKINS, late Minister to Russia, before he was 2 yrs. old. He is much improved, and looks remarkably well, with his points now finely developed. He is of the richest bay color, without a white hair upon him, and is over 16 hands high. The Proprietor has, at his stable, a colt by him, out of his old Moses mare, 18 months old, and now between 14 and 15 hands high, that is said to be one of the finest colts in the country; also, at the stable where he stands in Clark County, Ky., a filly foaled on the 14th April, 1838, out of the same mare, which is very large and very fine. To judge from these colts Envoy must breed well. Breeders and Turfmen would do well to call and examine Envoy and his colts [F2-tes]

Dr. HULL'S NEW TRUSS.

HERNIA CURED—PATENT OF 1838.—The public can now be assured that by the use of this Truss, young persons and children are the subjects of a speedy and certain cure, unparalleled instances of which are daily occurring in persons of advanced life. The approval of this instrument by the first Surgeons in the United States and England, and the immense number of Patients cured, has rendered its superiority over all other Trusses a matter of certainty.

Caution—The celebrity of Dr. Hull's Truss has caused many inferior articles to be manufactured, pretending to be his. Those wearing trusses cannot be too cautious in avoiding these dangerous spurious instruments, which have caused additional suffering to the afflicted. The genuine will have the signature of Dr. A. G. Hull on the pad of each of them, by attention to which safety will be ensured.

She has never been broke nor bred from, and is well worthy the attention of breeders of fine stock. On Dits in Sporting Circles.

Jockey Club Dinner.—Wednesday next, the 24th inst., is the day appointed for the meeting and the dinner at the Astor House, to give new life and spirit to the Northern Turf. From the great interest with which the subject is regarded here, we have every reason to anticipate one of the most influential assemblages that has ever "touched knees under mahogany" in our city. As it is possible that some gentlemen may be prevented from attending the dinner, who would yet take pleasure in furthering the objects in view, we would suggest to them the utility of signifying their intentions by letter, addressed to JOHN A. KING, Esq., who will preside at the dinner, supported by Commodore RIDGELEY and JOHN C. STEVENS, Esq., or, after that time, to the Proprietors of the Union Course. We trust, however, that none but important matters will be deemed sufficient to prevent any true friend of the Northern Turf from being present on the occasion. Two dollars and fifty cents each will be charged for dinner, wines extra, and the mere fact of attendance will not be held as implying any obligation to join the Club, or contribute thereto. It is very desirable that those gentlemen who intend being present, should leave their names, as soon as convenient, at the Bar of the Astor House, or at the Office of This Paper. The cause for which the meeting is convened is one of much interest, and we prophecy a new era in Northern racing from the deliberations of the 24th.

JOHN F. MILLER, Esq. of New Orleans, has purchased Curculia, of James Shy, for $4000. Curculia is a very slashing performer, and already figures to advantage in the Racing Calender; she is a chesnut, 4 yrs. old in May, by Medoc, out of a mare by Sumpter.

Mr. JAMES B. KENDALL, of Baltimore, has sold the following stock to the Hon. ALBERT G. HARRISON, of Missouri, for $1500 each:—

Molinera, gr. m., by Medley, out of Algerina by Jones' Arabian.
Louisa Lee, b. m., by Medley, out of Brunette by Telegraph, 5 yrs.
Brown colt by Sussex, out of the dam of Miss Phillips, 4 yrs.

The Queen turned out!—A letter from Virginia informs us that this fine filly is at Dr. GOODWYN's stud farm at Belfield, where she is turned out. Of course the match with Boston, at Raleigh, is off—a circumstance we greatly regret.

Mr. ABNER ROBINSON, now of New Orleans, has purchased from Mr. CHEATHAM, his interest (one half) in the Imp. Fylde colt Altorf, for $3000.

JOSEPH W. TUCKER, of Thiboudeauxville, La., has purchased the following stock of J. S. BERRYMAN, Esq. of Ky.:—

Ch. f. by Medoc, out of Mary Threshly by John Henry, yearling.

Mr. HENRY A. TAYLOE's nomination (the 19th,) in the Peyton Stake—the produce of Howa by Imp. Luzborough, and Mingo—has made its appearance in the shape of a very promising colt. Howa is with Post Boy, at Murfreesboro', Tenn.

The N. Y. Off-Hand Rifle Club met for practice at Williamsburg, on the 10th inst. The distance appointed was one hundred yards, and the best shots (10 in number each,) were made by Mr. WILLIAM WATTS. The measure of his ten shots was 22⅞ inches.

A new Jockey Club at Savannah, Ga., we hear, is in contemplation, with every prospect of success. Several gentlemen of spirit have taken this matter in hand, and we trust to hear in a few weeks that every arrangement is consummated.

Kate Seaton, the beautiful Argyle filly of Col. HAMPTON's, is in Dr. GOODWYN's stable, in training for her engagements at Baltimore and Camden. A gentleman that has seen her recently, writes that she is "a bulger;" kegs to chaws of tobacco will be bet on her, against any other of the seventeen nominations in the stake at the Kendall Course.

THE LONG ISLAND AND NEW JERSEY STABLES.

We have visited or heard from nearly every stable at the North within the last week, and are pleased to state that the horses generally are looking uncommonly well, notwithstanding most of them were taken up late, from the backwardness of the season. BELCHER has sent home Maj. JONES' Zenobia, to be turned out until fall, and Atalanta has not been taken up. Fordham and Suffolk are looking remarkably well; an untried Sussex filly of Maj. SELDEN's ditto, and another of VAN SICKLEN's. Jane Rowlett is quite low, but in fine health. Mr. ROBERT L. STEVENS has a long string of very superb three yr olds, two of them by Shark, one by Emilius, another by Priam, "and so on:" all of them are moving well. MCCOMB has Mr. WILKES' half brother to Dr. Syntax which is looking superbly, John R, whose feet are grown out well, and a brother to him—a fine looking 3 yr. old—and a 3 yr. old grey colt by Imp. Autocrat, &c. (Post Boy) Sam has Mr. TILLOTSON's young-things and some others, of which report speaks favorably.

The New Jersey stables have a fortnight's advantage of those on the Island, in work. Clarion in Mr. VAN MATER's stable, lost an eye recently by the carelessness of his groom; the others in the string were going finely last Wednesday and Clarion's work has been interrupted but a few days only. Manalopan made a capital trial last week; besides Trenton and Cricket, Van Mater has a raft of 3 yr olds; he took up twelve. He is getting four mile length into Hornblower to meet Portsmouth. Mr. THOMSON's string is at Trenton and the imported things are looking superbly. The Rowton colt out of Nanine, unfortunately has the string halt, but it does not appear to affect his style of going, in fast work. There are four other imported 3 yr olds—Mercer by Emilius, Passaic by Reveller, Cumberland by Camel, and Atlantic by Actæon. Langford is looking and going uncommonly well, and old Bergen, we believe, is up to the mark; Caroline, the Miss Mattie filly, in the four mile play or pay stake, is in Col. JOHNSON's stable. From Colt's Neck we hear that LAIRD feels as fine as a 4 yr old himself, his string is going so well. Decatur is thought to have quite recovered his foot, and Job is looked upon as a second edition of the great Mingo; the stable is full, though we are not "fly" to the other inmates; Gen IRVINE, we believe, has a 4 yr old sister to Busiris, and a 3 yr old or two among the lot. Mr. C. H. HALL's Lady Lightfoot filly is not in training this season. HELLINGS, at the Eagle course, has twelve up, including a half brother to Trifle and Charlotte Russe, by Andrew, called Borax—a horrid name, and enough itself to place him behind the pole. He has also Stephan, a fine ch. f. by Shark out of Imp. Fairy by Herod, and a ch. c. by Star out of Melinda, all engaged in stakes at the first meeting on the Eagle. Mr. GIBBONS has a fine colt by Shark out of Bonnets o' Blue, called Mariner, that is heavily engaged with Saracen and Shadow, all of which are looking well.

From all accounts we are inclined to anticipate fine sport at the ensuing meeting. In all probability we shall have a stable or two from Virginia at the first meeting on the Island, as not less than Eighty horses were assembled at Newmarket on Sunday last; some of them could not do better than pay us an early visit. JOHN ALCOCK has in Col. HETH's stable both Baylie Peyton and Lady Clifden—where can they find a softer place? Col. JOHNSON has, besides Boston and Caroline, both Mary Blunt and Argyle in training, but we are fearful neither of the latter can live through the campaign; without The Queen pays forfeit in the match at Raleigh, Col. J. cannot attend our first meeting and Mr. WILSON must of course go to Washington with Omega and Portsmouth. Any string of good ones will be heartily welcomed come from whence it may.

MATCH $10,000 ASIDE, PORTSMOUTH vs. BOSTON.

We are indebted to the courtesy of an esteemed friend for the annexed report of the Match between Portsmouth and Boston, which the former won with ease, in 3:50—3:48, over a heavy track! A letter received on Tuesday last, from Belfield, (alluded to in another place,) informed us that The Queen was turned out; the result of this match, however, may induce her friends to take her up again.

TUESDAY, April 16, 1839—Match $10,000 aside, $3000 forfeit. Two mile heats.

John C. Rodgers & Co.'s (E. J. Wilson's) b. c. Portsmouth, by Imp. Luzborough, out of Polly Peachem by John Richards, 4 yrs., 106lbs	1 1
Col. W. R. Johnson's (N. Rives') ch. h. Boston, by Timoleon, out of Robin Brown's dam by Ball's Florizel, 6 yrs., 118lbs	2 2

Time, 3:50—3:48. Track heavy.

The following report was received on Thursday morning:—

NEWMARKET, April 16, 1839.

Dear Sir,—I write in great haste to be in time for the mail. The great race between Boston and Portsmouth has just come off. Portsmouth won easily in 3:50—3:48. In the first heat, Boston did not get a good start; he tried it on in the last mile, but could not get up to the colt. In the second heat, the start was good, and Boston went off at his best speed, but was outfooted in the first 150 yards, though he kept well up, and collared Portsmouth as they passed the stand in the first mile; he was shook off immediately, and though he made strong running, he had no chance to win, as the colt had something in hand throughout the heat, and widened the gap in the run home.

Portsmouth is a "crowder" for two miles, at least, and if he had been called upon, could have made time "mighty low down in the forties."

The time—3:48—is very fast over the Newmarket Course, though the colt, had he been pushed, would have made time seldom seen "in these parts."

I will not have time, by this mail, for the colt race now to come off.

The track is heavy, and in the race, Boston has shown how he can hold on to his best stroke. Your friend, M.

SPORTING EPISTLE FROM NEW ORLEANS.

In our last publication we gave "a specimen letter" from a Mississippi Turfman, and to day we present another from one of the most distinguished citizens of Louisiana, the weight of whose character and influence has done more for the establishment and perpetuation of the Sports of the Turf in New Orleans than any other individual in the State. However the recent change in the size and price of "the Spirit" may affect its circulation among another class of readers, it is gratifying to know that the one to whom it more immediately addresses itself, fully appreciates the exertions of its Editor and takes an increased interest in its success. The letter annexed was written from a sick bed, and not intended for publication, but we have taken the liberty of quoting it for its valuable suggestions, as well as a specimen of the tone and spirit of letters which reach us daily from the South and West, that those not directly interested in blood stock might be made acquainted with the standing and character of the friends together, of "the Spirit" and of the Turf:—

NEW ORLEANS, March 29, 1839.

My Dear Sir.—I have just done the needful with your agent LEEFE, and paid my last and present year's subscriptions; but I am so highly pleased with the New Series of the "Spirit of the Times," that I cannot refrain from taking up my pen to tell you so. I sincerely wish you all the patronage that so much enterprise and talent merit. You have done, and are doing, more for the promotion of our National Amusement, and the improvement of our breed of horses, than any other individual who has lived in this country.

Our racing is not, I am sorry to say, in the palmy state it was when we had the good fortune to see you here. The clubs, it is true, still retain their wonted animation, pay their subscriptions, &c., but our meetings on the Race Courses are badly attended. Something of this is no doubt due to the very injudicious establishment of three of them, the rivalry created among them, or the clashing of interests, which always follow such a state of things. Something is also to be ascribed to the passing away of the novelty, which gave so much zest and charm to the early assemblages on the Eclipse track; but the controling cause of the present indifference is, I think, to be sought and found in the altered state of the times. During the last two years, commercial difficulties and pecuniary embarrassments, have sobered and turned to grave thought, a large portion of our community, who, heretofore were joyous, because they were at ease for the present, and looking forward without anxiety to the future. Until this cause is removed, I do not look for any effectual amelioration. Something perhaps might be done, if we could reduce our three courses to one, and have two or three races on each day's meeting. Three successive weeks wear our people out. Some times there is no contest, or one of little interest, and persons who go once or twice, and are disappointed in their hopes of amusement, cease going altogether. I wish you would enlighten your readers, and more particularly such of them as are owners of race tracks, on this matter. As things are at present, they make no money. They are injuring our amusement. It is only in our country, I believe, that such a thing was ever dreamt of, as several and rival establishments in the same place. It would make John Bull, I imagine, stare, if any one were to propose the erection of a new race course in the neighbourhood of Newmarket, or of Ascot, or of any other place where an establishment of this kind already exists.

We have had some very good racing here this spring. There was a most capital two mile race the other day at the Metarie track. Bee's-wing, who by the way, is in my opinion the best two mile nag I have ever seen, won the first heat with great ease in 3:44 official time. Many other timers made it 3:42, and the race was well contested by Greydoc, a colt of Medoc. While on this matter, I must tell you of some great legal questions, which have arisen at this same Metarie meeting. The decision of the judges has not been received with general acquiescence, and should such a matter ever come up on the course where I am President, I should like to be prepared for it. A bet is made on time—the heat is a dead one—the judges decide it is no heat, and that the time in which the heat is run cannot be noticed. As a consequence of this principle, the same judges say, that a horse cannot be distanced, though behind the pole, if two of those who are before him run a dead heat. How stands the law in New York on this subject? Have you any precedents? Without stating any opinion of my own, for in truth I have not yet definitely formed any, I cannot help thinking that the reason of the thing does not harmonise well with the judgment pronounced.

[This question has been referred for decision to Col. JOHNSON, of Virginia. By "the Law of New York" the circumstance of a dead heat would not affect the bet on time or placing of the horses, nor would it in Va. Such a rule did exist at Broad Rock, up to the time of Nullifier's race there, when on the occasion of his bolting and being distanced he was allowed to start again, inasmuch as it was a dead heat between the two leading horses; the rule was then nullified, and it is not in force now in America—save on the Metarie course, New Orleans.]

I have been confined to my bed all this winter, by a severe indisposition, and it is only within the last three days I have been able to leave my room. Writing this letter is the strongest effort to which I have yet put my returning strength, and I have just enough of it left to assure you, that I am faithfully yours.

☞ You are right in relation to that question which grows out of a bet of two horses against the field, and your Kentucky correspondent is most ingeniously wrong.

SPORTING EPISTLE FROM THE OLD DOMINION.

"SCUFFLE-TOWN," the Shank-eend of Richmond, Va., April 11, 1839.

Dear Sir.—As things are getting so confounded spunky down here in the way of Racing this Spring, I can't hold in any longer and am obleeged to write you a little bit. Sweepstakes have filled with so much size and spirit and matches been made with so much eagerness and raal "double-fluttering" game, that I've kind a got the notion that we're going to have a "revival" like, in the racing community this year. You see the Legislatur has helped the Banks here out of them tight "kinks" they have been in for some time past, and the "nigger trading loans" are made good, and money and chips (I dont mean Farro Chips) are about one and the same thing in the way of plenty—and folks feel fresh-waked up and have rubbed the gum off their eyes and are now peeping through the clear light of the "risen-day" at their bright "Star in the ascendant"—so if you want to see fun and fighting jist step down our way; and if you'd like to take a hand yourself jist come and "spread yourself," for "I pawn you my honor," we've got some "keeners" down here will be happy to "brush the lint," or "shake the ticks" off of you in the way of a little "fancy-jerk" (not at "Seven up," for that's more than they commonly send) bur a sociable "para-graphation" on a Match or a Stake—and if they cant do the business for you, "I'm that child can read write and cypher" and will execute the "job" (out-doors work—I dont mean "*in*side jobs," for I'm getting sort a lame at them, and my tools want fresh "pinting" and new metal in the basils)—I say, "Stranger," I'm that chap will do it for you in a "nate and workmanlike style, no chip or "shaving" (for old "Joe" sees to the latter) visible in the transaction, for my work is raal "knawing off and swallering:" O "sinks" the "dust" as fast as it falls—So jist "call out" at "Scuffle-Town" my Friend and we'll "come to a sight."—Everybody's in Petersburgh to witness the Match twixt Boston and Portsmouth next Tuesday. Both sides are laying so low and keeping so shady you would'nt know any thing of the sort was going on there: Its a raal "who shall and who shall" game they're a playing between 'em—I'm afeard 'twont come off—but if it should come off there will be a d—d sight o' "lint" car'd off with it. As times are tollable tight with me, I can't afford more than half Boots at this writing, so with your permisshun I'll jist let it be Razeed BOOTS.

P. S.—The Race Critters are all doing very well, this Spring down here. We are going to have lively work for the money you may depend. Thar's Argyle going it with a perfect freeality. Lady Cliffden sound as a dollar and swift as the wind—Old Steel, Balie Peyton, Black Prince and a host of four yr old's looking up for spoils—Rare sport in prospect. 'Tis whispered that "Capt. Jack" has some "snorters" in his "String" this season—but the Capt. dodges so constant in the "high grass" nobody never knows nothing about him. B.

THE NORTHERN TURF.

To the Editor of the Spirit of the Times: Sir,—From what has appeared in the last two Nos. of your paper, I find that some attempt is being made to revive the apparently drooping racing spirit of the North. I feel much gratified at this, not by reason of any direct interest in the matter, but simply because I have always regarded it as among the most noble and manly amusements of the day,—and because, too, I have the indirect interest of a breeder of Blood Stock. And it has occurred to my mind, Mr. Editor, that this indirect interest is not confined to the Breeder alone, but, on the contrary, that various vocations are equally interested, and should cheerfully contribute their mite towards the revival and perpetuity of this beautiful amusement, to wit, Railroad, Ferry, and Turnpike companies, Merchants, Mechanics, Hotel-keepers, and many others. All such, I think, are directly interested, and would find their remuneration in its continuance.

But, the main question is, how is this thing to be done? what is the best plan to adopt? Now my limited experience does not enable me to suggest. But of one thing I am very certain, that it cannot be in better hands than those gentlemen who have been nominated as a committee, viz., Messrs. J. C. STEVENS, JOHN A. KING, CHARLES G. RIDGELEY, WM. GIBBONS, JNO. R. THOMSON, WALTER LIVINGSTON, A. P. HAMLIN, ROBT. L. STEVENS, and CHARLES LIVINGSTON, to take the thing in hand, and recommend some plan for general adoption. They are all gentlemen of high character, good observation, and some of them of great experience in such matters, and if they can only be induced, as I am sure they will be after their nomination and acceptance, to enter, heart and hand, into this matter, and to exert that influence which we all know they possess, both among the fashionable and business portion of our community, there can be no rational doubt as to their ultimate success.

But to the plan itself. I cannot forbear to express my entire acquiescence in the suggestions made by yourself in the last No. of your paper, i. e., that the full amount of the purses, at least, should be received by contributions from the various subscribers—that there should be a maximum and minimum amount of subscription, to be determined by each individual gentleman, according to his own conception of his ability and interest in the matter, and that the Club be raised for a term of years.

Upon this, or some such plan, it seems to me a Club might easily be established, one that would certainly ensure good purses, and of consequence, good sport, cost no one man much, and leave the proprietors a fair remuneration for the cost of their investment, trouble, and attention to such matters. Indeed, Mr. Editor, when one reflects maturely on this subject, it is a proposition as true as mathematics, that if A's income is $10,000 per annum, he certainly will be expected, and ought to, subscribe more liberally for the advancement of an object in which his interest, or his pleasure, if you please, is involved, than B, whose means are more scanty, and whose interest is less direct, but who innately is as much inclined to promote it. Again, Sir, 'tis a fact not to be disguised, that no gentleman can be expected to make a large investment, and to devote all, or even a large portion of his time, towards the consummation of our object, in which the pleasures or interests of others are involved, unless he shall find a remuneration for doing so. But, Sir, I have exceeded my limits; I can only add, that I regret my inexperience in such matters does not enable me to make to the committee, or to the racing community, any matter-of-fact suggestions, which in their deliberations they might turn to some good account. I will add, however, that recommend what course the committee may, it shall receive my hearty co-operation. Also, that I shall attend the Jockey Club dinner to be had at the Astor House on the 24th inst, when and where I shall be glad to quaff a glass of Boyden, Coleman & Stetson's best "Gov. Kirby," with that Hotel-keeper whom you reported not long since as being willing to subscribe a Cup wotth some four or five hundred dollars towards the revival of the racing spirit, and I would do so under the sincere desire that he might find his compensation in the liberality of his contribution. Your friend and ob't serv't,

April 19, 1839. A BREEDER.

Memo.—Since writing the above, I have received a circular, signed by the committee, advising me of the dinner, and requesting my attendance. It suggested this idea, that some gentlemen might receive said circular, who would be unable to attend the dinner, and yet willing to join the Club. Might it not be expedient that such, if any, should indicate such willingness by letter, addressed to said committee on the day of the dinner, or at some convenient time to Messrs. BOTTS & BRANCH, proprietors of the Course.

Our correspondent writes that the mare which brought the highest price (purchased by JAMES PORTER, Esq. of Lafourche, La.) has fine size and a symmetrical form, indicative of great power, and is, altogether, a bloodlike and valuable animal. She is to be sent to Medoc.

Madame Thiers and the Pearl Necklace.—"At the late ball, given by the Prince de T——," says the Presse, "a remarkably fine pearl necklace, worn by Madame Thiers, estimated at upwards of 50,000 francs, was the object of general admiration. It was said to have been presented to her by the Queen of Spain, a rumour which, as we are told, M. Thiers did not contradict." The Messager replies that it is a lie, and a manœuvre which it will not qualify. It adds that it is false that the Queen of Spain ever gave anything to Madame Thiers; and that it is also false that Madame Thiers has a necklace valued at 50,000 francs.

The France, after noticing the above statement, and the contradiction given to it by the Messager and other papers, says that the following is the true story on which the statement is founded:—"Madame Thiers, on arriving at the ball of the Prince de T., took her seat by the side of a Spanish lady, who immediately removed to another place. Two other ladies followed her example, so that Madame Thiers was left, as it were, isolated in the middle of the saloon. It has been said that she wore a rich necklace sent to her from Spain, and that the conduct of the female Grandees from that kingdom was intended as a mark of their disapprobation of this token of favour. This last assertion is correct. Only the ornament was not a necklace either of pearls or diamonds, but the collar of the Order of Isabella the Catholic, with which Queen Christina has really invested Madame Thiers, and which excited the extreme displeasure of the noble ladies of Spain. This collar is the pendant of the badge of the Order of Charles III., worn by M. Thiers."

A Cold Pun.—In the snowy weather, last week, Sir —— —— met Mrs. —— rather sprinkled with the fleecy fall, and said, "Why do you wear your sable box on a day like this?" "Because, my dear Sir," replied the lady, "I do not like my chin chilly."

A Nigger Jockey.—It takes a considerable cute man to make a horse jockey, and a little grain of the rogue too, for there is no mistake about the matter—you must lie a few to put 'em off well.—Now that's only the lowest grade of knowledge. A nigger jockey, said the Cariboo, for heaven's sake what is that? I never heerd the term afore since I was a created sinner—I hope I may be shot if I did. Possible said I, never heerd tell of a nigger jockey! My sakes, you must come to the States then—we'll put more wrinkles on your horns in a month there, than you'll get in twenty years here, for the critters don't know nothing. A nigger jockey sir, says I, is a gentleman that trades in niggers; buys them in one state, and sells them in another, where they arn't known. It's a beautiful science, it's nigger flesh; it's what the lawyers call a liberal profession. Uncle Enoch made enough in one year's tradin' in niggers to buy a splendid plantation; but it ain't every one that's up to it. A man must have his eye teeth cut before he takes up that trade, or he is apt to be let in for himself, instead of putting a leak in others; that's a fact. Niggers don't show their age like white folks, and they are almost always older than they look. A little rest, ilein' the joints, good feed, a clean shirt, a false tooth or two, and dying the wool black, if it's got grey, keepin' 'em close shaved, and gist givin' 'em a glass o' whiskey or two afore the sale to brighten' up the eye, has put off many an old nigger of fifty-five for forty. It does more than trimmin' and groomin' a horse, by a long chalk. Then if a man knows geography, he fixes on a spot in next state for meetin' agin, slips a few dollars in Sambo's hand, and Sambo slips the halter off in the manger, meets massa there, and is sold a second time agin. Wash the dye out, let the beard grow, and remove the tooth, and the devil himself couldn't swear to him again.

The Thames Tunnel.—The workmen of the Thames Tunnel were on Saturday evening regaled by the Directors of the Company with a substantial dinner of roast-beef and plum-pudding in the interior of the works, in consequence of having perfected 860 feet of the tunnel Between 200 and 300 individuals sat down to dinner. Mr. Brunel, Mr. Hawes, M.P. for Lambeth, and Chairman of the Board of Directors, with other gentlemen connected with the undertaking, were present, and several appropriate toasts were given. The band of the Coldstream Guards was in attendance, and played several favourite airs.

The trousseau of the bride elect of the Marquis of Douro, the Lady Elizabeth Hay, is likely to be one of the most splendid that has added value to the dowry of modern belles. We hear that his Grace the Duke of Wellington, having found in his cabinets quantities of diamonds which he had forgotten, or never thought of till now, has declared that the bride shall have them all. Amongst them is an order given to his Grace by Louis XVIII., worth £60,000. The Lady Elizabeth is in her 19th year.—Morning Paper. [Prodigious!!! A man of careful habits like the Duke of Wellington, and not overr-ich, is not likely to forget that he had quantities of diamonds, among which was one worth £50,000! Once more we say, Prodigious!]

Prince Aloys de Kaunitz, the son of the celebrated Minister of the Empress Maria Theresa, has, we hear, been restored to the immense estates of his family. His Highness is nearly related to Prince de Metternich, and is the father of the beautiful Countess Karolyi, wife of the Hungarian Magnate Count L. Karolyi, who created a sensation in the Court circles in London four years back. Prince de Kaunitz, after having represented the Austrian Emperor at various Courts, and being his Ambassador at the Court of Rome, was condemned to banishment and forfeiture of his estates, for a circumstance which at that time excited much sensation in Europe. It was said that the palace which he inhabited when the occurrence to which we allude took place, had been levelled to the ground. The Prince had since long been an unwilling resident in St. Pelagie, at Paris. His Highness is a man of noble presence, and, by his distinguished manner and great acquirements, fitted for the great offices which he once held. The severity of the punishment awarded and maintained against the Prince de Kaunitz was dictated by the desire of the late Emperor Francis, to show his people that he made no difference betwixt his noble and plebeian subjects; and never could a better opportunity have been found to prove the sincerity of that excellent Sovereign—the rank, connections, and influence of the Prince de Kaunitz not being surpassed by those of any other subject of the immense empire of Austria.

Mutual Deficiency.—A barrister, who was lame of one leg, pleading before a late judge, who had little or no nose, the judge told him he was afraid he had but a lame cause of it. "Oh, my lord," said the barrister, "have but a little patience, and I'll warrant I prove everything as plain as the nose on your face."

TRAINING ESTABLISHMENT AND FARM FOR SALE.

A FARM on Jamaica Bay, Long Island, 2½ miles south of the town of Jamaica, and 11 miles distant from the City of New York, containing 170 acres, of which 100 acres are in the very highest state of cultivation, 50 or 60 acres of fresh and salt meadow, and 20 acres of wood, principally hickory.

There are on the premises a Mansion House, with a Green-house and two Kitchens attached; together with hovels, hay house, barn, and cattle sheds; wood house, ice house, and root house; acorn crib, set on pillars, with extensive granaries; a large stone milk cellar, pig styes, iron and copper boilers, &c. &c. &c. There is 220 feet of stabling, containing 20 loose boxes for race horses, with extensive mows for hay and straw. There is a smith's shop, and a house adjoining the stables for the boys, a saddle room, and a feed room fitted with bins capable of containing 300 bushels; 12 of the boxes (15 feet by 10) are paved, with a portico in front, to protect the horses while washing legs, &c., with wire doors for the summer. The racks are of iron, and the feed boxes and sides of stalls, within reach of the horses, lined with tin.

The Training Track is in the immediate vicinity of the stables, a mile, or very nearly so, in circumference, completely fenced, and so protected as not to interfere or be interfered with, by the farmer.

There are paddocks for horses out of training, our of which are enclosed with close board fences, with circular ends and a stable in each; making in all 28 separate boxes and stables, for racing stock

There is a house for the trainer and another for the overseer a four horse power, with threshing and grinding mills, cutting box, &c. &c. &c. &c.

In short, there is nothing wanting, that I am aware of, to render it complete, for either a farming, training, or breeding establishment.

The Farm is so situated that it may be advantageously divided and sold in two or three parcels: 30 or 40 acres with the trainer's house 25 or 30 with the mansion house and stables, with the privilege of using the training track, and 60 or 80 acres with the farm and farm house.

TO ALL WHO KEEP HORSES.

WADE'S WORM AND CONDITION POWDERS FOR HORSES have been extolled upwards of 37 years in England and France, as the best and only preparation to promote the condition of horses. They destroy the worms and bots, loosen the hide, fine the coat, purify the blood, so as to do away with the necessity of bleeding, render the food more nutritive, prevent the animal taking cold after exposure to heat, and are at all times a great restorative after a hard day's work. They have been tested by the first Veterinary Surgeons, and certificates granted as to their efficacy in the above named cases. Since their introduction in this country the first owners of valuable studs have given them to their horses, and acknowledge that they are not to be surpassed by anything else.

SHARK

THIS beautiful thorough-bred Race-Horse will stand the present season of 1839, at the stable of John Drew, near the Union Race Course, upon Long Island, New York, at $60 the season, $100 to insure a mare with foal, and $1 to the groom. The season to commence on the 20th Feb and end the 1st July.

Shark is a beautiful black, about 15¼ hands high, of good bone and substance, in high racing form, and nine years old this grass.

PEDIGREE.—Shark was bred by Charles Henry Hall, Esq., at Harlaem, New York, and foaled in April 1830. He was got by the celebrated American Eclipse. His dam the noted running mare known at first as Col. Taylor's Maria, and afterwards named Lady Lightfoot, by Sir Archy; grandam, Black Maria by Imp Shark; g. g. dam by Imp. Clockfast, (she was the dam of the celebrated horse Vingtun, by Imp. Diomed); g. g. g. dam Fitzhugh's famous running mare Maria, by Regulus, &c. &c.

His sire, American Eclipse, was got by Duroc, out of Miller's Damsel by Imp. Messenger; her dam the imported mare by Pot-8-o's, &c.

[For Shark's Performances in full, see "Spirit of the Times," from Jan. 5, to Feb. 23, 1839.]

Shark was withdrawn from the Course, and let to mares the season of 1836. His get are very promising, valued highly, and those 3 yrs. old in 1839 will probably make their appearance on the Course.

He is own brother to Eclipse Lightfoot, to Black Maria, who won the 20 mile race (that is, 5 heats, including a dead heat) over the Union Course, beating Trifle and three others—also to Terror, and to Bay Maria, who has won all her races in South Carolina and Georgia four mile heats. His dam Lady Lightfoot, trained and ran until eleven years old, and was pronounced by the late Gen. Wm. Wynn, of Virginia, the best race mare, and the safest to bet upon, that he ever knew—her performances are unrivalled. His whole family, paternal and maternal, have not even a remote cross of inferior blood; they have throughout been renowned for game and stoutness, their best play being the course of four miles. Those who retain a partiality to the blood of Eclipse have now an opportunity of acquiring the same by breeding from Shark, who, if not the most renowned of his get, by exploits on the turf, in point of pure and high blood stands first.

STOCKHOLDER.

MR. EDITOR—This will inform you that I have purchased the celebrated Race-Horse and Race-horse Getter, old STOCKHOLDER, by Sir Archy, dam by Imp. Citizen.

He will make his next season at my residence, in Wilson County, 8 miles from Lebanon, on Cumberland River, 15 miles from Gallatin, and 35 miles above Nashville, at $75 the season, $125 to insure, and $1 to the groom. Mares will be pastured and grain fed at $1 per week, which must be paid when the mares are taken away. The season money will be due on 1st Jan., 1840. All mares sent to my care will be well treated, and every precaution used to prevent accidents or escapes, but no liability for either. The season will commence on the 15th Feb. next, and end on the last day of June.

His character as a Racer and a Stallion is too well known to require puffing.

The performances of his colts at all distances, from One to Four mile heats, are equally well known, and the cross between Imp. Leviathan and Stockholder is considered equal, if not superior, to any other in America.

The pedigree of Stockholder, for the satisfaction and interest of all concerned, has been made a matter of record, and is registered in the Registrar's Office of Wilson County, Tennessee.

From the untarnished character of Old Stockholder, and the great pains I am taking to give general satisfaction, I shall expect a liberal share of public patronage.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 9, 1838.—[d29-tf.] A. B. NEWSOM.

BERNERS' COMUS AND CONSOL.

THE Imported Stallions, BERNERS' COMUS and CONSOL, will stand in 1839 at Boardman's Mills, near Huntsville, Ala., the former at $80, the latter at $70; insurance by either, $100, $10 discount for prompt pay.

The plantation at the Mills is arranged for the express accommodation of blood stock, being divided into a great number of lots and paddocks, with convenient shelters and stables; and abounds with pasturage, shade, and water. Every care which the personal attention of the owner, aided by faithful grooms, can bestow, will be given to mares and their foals at a reasonable price.

Berners' Comus is a brown, 16 hands, of unexceptionable form, and entirely sound. His trainer, who had the management of Lord Berners' stock for 18 years, says, "Lord B. never had a better horse, or one that could run a long distance better than him. There was one or two of his year could beat him for speed, but he could beat nearly all the rest." It appears from the Racing Calendar that he was a winner at all distances, from 1200 yards to four mile heats.

Consol is a dark bay or brown, 16 hands, of high form, great substance, and all sound; he was both a speedy and lasting racer, having continued in work until 7 yrs. old without a blemish. Out of 21 engagements, he won and received forfeit 11 times, ran 2d four times, and 3d four times. The last year he was on the turf, then 7 yrs. old, he was the trial horse of the largest and most successful stable in England (Scott's), which that year won the Derby with Mundig.

His colts, the oldest of which were foaled in 1837, are uncommonly promising in appearance, of good bone and high finish. One of them was sold at auction, when a yearling, for $1500, and many others would bring still higher prices—higher, it is believed, than those of any other untried horse in the country.

FOUR MILE STAKE, BEACON COURSE.

They are respectfully informed that a stake of a somewhat similar character is now open to be run on the Beacon Course, N.J., the week succeeding the Second Meeting on Long Island. It is as follows:—

We, the subscribers, agree to run a Sweepstakes, Four mile heats, with 4 yr. olds, over the Beacon Course, Second Spring Meeting 1839; entrance $2000, forfeit $500. To name and close 24th of May, 1839. Three or more to make a race.

[Mar30] ALEX. L. BOTTS, Secretary.

IMPORTED TRUSTEE,

BY CATTON, out of Emma by Whisker. Catton has always been considered one of the best, if not the best four mile horse ever bred in England. In speaking of him he is called "the celebrated Catton." Trustee was likewise a first rate horse, and was sold when a 3 yr. old, for 2,600 guineas.

Trustee will stand at my stable, near the Union Course, Long Island, the ensuing season, at the low price of $30 cash, and $1 to the groom. This rule will be strictly adhered to, and no mare need be sent to him without the money, it being better both for the breeder and owner of the horse. All accidents and escapes at the risk of the owner. Season to commence 1st Feb., and close 1st July.

PENNOYER.

THIS Thorough-bred Horse will stand at the subscriber's stable, at Augusta, Ga., and will be let to mares at $50 the season, and $1 to the groom. The season will commence the 1st of March and end the 15th June. Mares fed at 50 cents per day. Good and extensive and well enclosed pasturage has been provided, and all possible care and attention will be paid to mares left with the horse, but no responsibility for escapes or accidents if any should happen. The season money will be due and payable when the mares are taken away.

PEDIGREE.

Pennoyer was sired by Henry (the competitor of Eclipse), out of Ariel by Eclipse. For purity of blood, and as a distinguished runner, Ariel has never been surpassed, having started 57 times, and was winner 42 times, (17 of which were four mile heats.) His grandam was by Financier, out of Empress, who has also been regarded as one of the most renowned race nags and brood mares of the North. Empress was got by Imp. Baronet, her dam by Old Messenger, grandam by Strap, out of Jenny Dator by True Briton. Jenny Dator was out of Quaker Lass, got by Juniper, out of Molly Pacolet by Pacolet—her g. g. dam was got by Old Spark, g. g. g. dam Queen Mab, g. g. g. g. dam Miss Caldwell. For further particulars see Am. Turf Register, vol. 6.

Henry was sired by Sir Archy (son of Imp. chesnut Diomed), his dam by Diomed, grandam by Beli-air, g. g. dam by Pilgrim, g. g. g. dam by Valiant, g. g. g. g. dam by Janus, g. g. g. g. g. dam by Jolly Roger. The four last named are imported horses.

DESCRIPTION.

Pennoyer was foaled in the Spring of 1834, is a beautiful brown bay, stands full 15¾ hands high, and in point of blood, high racing form, style and action, is excelled by none. While training at 2 yrs old, his owners were flattered with the highest expectations of him, as a first-rate race horse (having tried him sufficiently to test his superior speed), and had he not received an injury in one of his fore legs, just above the knee, while in training, which prevented his appearance on the turf, there can be no doubt, from his trials, that he would now have been one of the most distinguished racers of the day.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 1, 1839—[J5-tf.] HENRY DALBY.

PERFORMANCES.

Belshazzar won the 2 yr. old stakes of 20 sovs. each, at York August Meeting, 1832, 18 subs.; won 20 sovs. each at Doncaster, 31 subs.; the St. Leger of 25 sovs. each, at York August Meeting, 15 subs.; the Gascoigne stakes of 100 sovs. each, at Doncaster, 5 subs.; and in this year Mr. Watt refused 5000 guineas for him. At Newmarket Spring Meeting in 1834, he won a Sweepstakes of 50 sovs. each, 5 subs. He gave Jason 13lbs. and Shylock 11lbs. But in this year, in a contest with Consol, he broke down, and was turned into the breeding stud, and became a very popular stallion. Among the horses he beat, were Rockingham (winner of the Doncaster St. Leger), Glaucus (winner of the Whip at Newmarket, and the Ascot Cup), Muley Molock, and many others. Mr. Watt's b. f. Cara, the first of his get, has appeared twice in public, with great credit. She at 2 yrs. old won the Criterion stakes of 30 sovs. each, 35 subs., at the Newmarket Houghton Meeting, beating two Langars (placed 2d and 3d), also a Reveller, a Mulatto, two Camels, an Emilius, a Cain, a Zinganee, two Priams, and many others. She ran for the Chesterfield stakes at the July Meeting, and looked like a winner till near the chair, when she ran out and lost her chance. The dam and grandam of Belshazzar bred winners of 99 races, and 19 times winners of four mile races.

DESCRIPTION.

Belshazzar is a dark chesnut, foaled in 1830, full 16 hands high, of good length and great substance, with accurate proportions, and the most blood-like appearance; and though plain horses in many instances run well, it is but justice to say, in addition to his racing qualities, Belshazzar must attract the notice of breeders by his general high finish, and an exquisite head and neck. THOMAS ALDERSON.

Nashville, Feb. 12, 1839.—[m16-3t.]

IMPORTED BELSHAZZAR.

I HAVE the pleasure to tender to the public generally, and to my friends in particular, the services of this splendid English Stallion. He is now in my stable, in the city of Nashville, in good health and condition, and will be ready for service on the following terms:—$125 insurance, $100 the season (to commence on the 15th Feb. and end on the 1st July), which may be discharged by the payment of $75 within the year, and $1 to the groom in each case, which will be expected at the stable door. The best pasturage the county affords, and grain at usual prices, and every attention to mares, but no liability for accidents or escapes.

PEDIGREE.

To breeders and sportsmen conversant with the blood horse, it would be sufficient to name sire and dam. But for others, we say, Belshazzar was got by Blacklock, out of Mannella by Dick Andrews—Mandane by Pot-8-o's—Young Camilla by Woodpecker—Camilla by Trentham—Coquette by the Compton Barb—Sister to Regulus by the Godolphin Arabian—Grey Robinson by the Bald Galloway—Sister to Old Country Wench by Snake—Grey Wilks (sister to Clumsey) by Hautboy—Miss D'Arcy's Pet mare, daughter of a Sedbury Royal mare. It fully appears from the above that he has the maximum of blood, and that he derives his purity through the line of most illustrious ancestors. In other words, his breeding is not only thorough, but also most fashionable. He draws blood from Eclipse through Joe Andrews, a good son, and King Fergus and Pot-8-o's, his best sons. He draws blood from King Herod through Phenomenon and Woodpecker, very good sons, and Highflyer, his best, and has streams from the best English and Foreign sources for centuries. His family in near alliance show a due proportion of winners of distinguished prizes. His dam won the Oaks, and produced Memnon, a Doncaster St. Leger winner. Her sister, also won the St. Leger. Brutandorf, out of Mandane, was a good winner and Stallion, and Lottery, another son, though queer in temper, was, in my opinion, able to beat when he pleased, any horse of his day. Theodore, out of Blacklock's dam, won the St. Leger, and any one who reads the account of this great race of Blacklock's year, the state of the odds, and examines the performances, before and after, must come to the conclusion, that he should have beat Ebor. And he proved himself a better stallion, far better than his competitor

JOHN BASCOMBE.

THIS renowned and ever memorable horse will occupy his old stand at the Hampton Course, in the vicinity of Augusta, under my direction. Col. Crowell, his owner, after returning from his tour through the North East and West, has come to the conclusion to allow him to remain with me another season. Applications were made in various sections of our country; unlimited business was guaranteed; large sums offered by various gentlemen for the service of the horse; but Col. Crowell threw aside all minor considerations, all pecuniary motives; when on his return he found so many solicitations, from various quarters of the South, to allow the horse to remain with me, that he at length yielded and gratified their wishes. In fact, Bascombe has so many warm admirers, that they nearly view him as their common property. Bascombe has attained his end in one point, he has put to rest all those little petty slanders relative to impotency, as he has proved himself as sure a foal-getter as any horse that stands on four feet. His first get was dropped this season! each and every person's colt, in different parts of the South, is the crack and brag colt; in fact, for game-like appearance, quickness of action, sprightliness and playfulness, they are unsurpassed.

He will commence his season on the 15th Feb., to terminate on the 15th July.

Terms—$100 the season and $1 to the groom. Good lots, fine stables, pastures, and provender, will be provided for the mares; no liability for escapes or accidents. Persons sending mares are particularly requested to send their pedigree; also notes made payable to John Crowell or bearer. The expenses of the mares to be paid before taking them away. Mares remaining with the horse will be well taken care of at 50 cents per day, servants with them fed gratis.

It is useless to mention pedigree and performances; Bascombe's speak for themselves; the world know them; his name will be handed down from Turfite to Turfite; and when no more, the bosoms of future sportsmen will swell with emotion and delight, when they hear mentioned the name of Bascombe. [m10] F. W. LACY.

VOLNE

THIS highly bred and beautiful young race horse, acknowledged to be one of the speediest horses of his day, will stand the ensuing season at the stable of J. W. T. Reid, Esq., four miles east of Montgomery, Alabama, at Forty dollars the season, and Eighty dollars to insure a foal.

The following letters and certificates from the most distinguished Turfmen of Virginia, relative to the pedigree and performances of Volney, are respectfully presented for the perusal of the Turfmen and Breeders of Alabama.

The Pedigree of Volney.—Volney was got by Col. Wm. R. Johnson's horse Monsieur Tonson, out of Mr. Williams' brood mare by Sir Archie, and was four years old last Spring. A copy of the certificate of the pedigree of his dam, furnished by Wm. R. Johnson, Esq., is given below, the original of which was found among the papers of Mr. Williams, deceased. Richard Logan, Executor of Samuel Williams, dec'd.

The sorrel mare, purchased by Samuel Williams, Esq., of the estate of Edmund Irby deceased, was got by Sir Archie, her dam Weazle by Shylock, out of Captain Saillard's celebrated old mare by the imported horse Dare Devil, dam by old Wildair, the best son of Col. Baylor's imported horse Fearnaught—her grandam, a chesnut mare called Picudella, was got by Batt's & Maclin's Fearnaught, who was foaled in 1777, and bred by Mr. Edwards, of Hickstord, Va. Batt's & Maclin's Fearnaught was got by the old imported Fearnaught, out of an imported mare, who, in the Spring of 1776, was purchased by Mr. Edwards of the widow of Col. Maclin, on Elizabeth River, near Norfolk, Va.—her g. g. dam was got by Col. Baylor's horse Godolphin, who was got by the Imp. Fearnaught out of Col. Baylor's imp. mare Jenny Dismal—her g. g. g. dam was by the imp. horse Hob-Nob; this fine Hob-Nob mare was the property of Col. Archie Cary, of Chesterfield County, Va.)—her g. g. g. g. dam was by the imported horse Jolly Roger, known in England as Roger of the Vale—her g. g. g. g. g. dam was got by the imp. horse Valiant—her g. g. g. g. g. g. dam was by Tryall, who was by the Imp. Morton's Traveller.

The said sorrel filly, purchased by Mr. Williams, was a great favorite of Mr. Irby—so much so, that he entered her in a sweepstake, for which race she would have been trained, but his death made the entry void. W. R. Johnson.

Chesterfield, June 1, 1831. Richard Logan.

Charlotte County, Va., Dec. 1, 1838.

Mr. P. A. Prindle.—Dear Sir—In relation to your enquiry respecting the running qualities of your fine horse Volney, I can inform you that I trained him the Fall after he was three years old, and run him in one sweepstakes colt race, Mile heats, which he won with great ease at two heats, in 1:51 each heat. I then sent him home to his owner, who died in a short time after. Volney was then sold. Mr. Phillips was the purchaser at $2500. In the Spring of 1837 he won the Proprietor's Purse at Lynchburg, Two mile heats, with great ease. The following Fall I met him at the same course. I started a fine filly against him, Two mile heats—he beat her in fine style in Things Theatrical.

The Park.—The SLOMANS opened here on Tuesday last to a house hardly filled, and altogether more respectable in its character than is usual of late; the same remark will apply to their house on Thursday. Mrs. Sloman played on the first occasion Pauline, in the "Lady of Lyons," and on the latter, Isabella, in the "Fatal Marriage." The selection of Pauline we cannot deem judicious, as it subjected her to the severe ordeal of a comparison with Miss TREE and others, whose age alone would make their representation of the part more true and interesting. Isabella was more happily chosen, and in it she received far more applause. Mrs. Sloman cannot now pretend to the highest tragic excellence, but plays well enough to draw, perhaps, for a time. Her husband sings comic songs in a style to please the house, and win repeated encores. He has not much fun in his soul, apparently, if we may judge by his Sam Savory, in the farce of "Fish out of Water."

We are sorry that we feel compelled to write thus coldly of this engagement, but truly, the attraction of the Slomans will not prove strong enough to replenish the coffers of the Park. It is all very well in its way, and infinitely to be preferred to one other engagement made here within the last few months. Still it will not do, and something better must be offered before we shall have the pleasure of chronicling "crowded houses night after night."

SINCLAIR and LECOMTE are expected soon to appear, and rumor says that Mrs. GIBBS is likewise engaged. They will effect a decided change in the number of the frequenters of the Park.

The National.—Mr. WILLIS's new play has been drawing good houses here for the past fortnight, having been played every night but one since it was first brought out on the 8th inst. It is the only instance that we can recollect where an American play has met with such success. It was our purpose to write out a full analysis of it for this week, but the crowded state of our columns has deterred us. On Thursday evening, the author took another benefit, his interest in that of the week previous having been becomingly withdrawn by the Manager, in consequence of the excessive inclemency of the weather on that occasion.

Mr. WALLACK sails for Europe on Monday in the Great Western, to make engagements for the coming season. We write this hasty line some hours before the benefit which his friends are to give him to-night (Friday). That the attendance will be such as to inspire him with fresh spirit in the good cause of providing us with entertainment, we have no doubt. He has well deserved the compliment, and will worthily and practically signify his appreciation of it.

FOREIGN THEATRICALS.

The most notable event which we have to record under this head, is the new play of Sir Edward Lytton Bulwer, called "Richelieu." It has been brought out at Covent Garden, Macready playing the old Cardinal. It has had a decided run, and is esteemed a happier effort than the author's former play, "The Lady of Lyons." Next week we may have room for the plot and critical notices of the play. One paper sums up a long analysis of it in the following strain:—

Upon the whole, we regard Richelieu as a play abounding in beauties, as we think our extracts will sufficiently prove, and in the present dearth of dramatic excellence, we hail its appearance not only for what it gives, but also for what it promises. Sir Lytton Bulwer has conquered for himself a position amongst, or rather above, the writers of the day, which nothing but the sheerest malignity would dispute, and whatever necessity is laid upon us to denounce him for his politics, or for any other matter in which he may offend, we shall ever rejoice to find him achieving fresh triumphs, and be glad to acknowledge him as one whose name is inseparably interwoven with those of by-gone and present times, to form at once the support and the glory of British literature.

The papers write with enthusiasm of Macready's performance, charmed with "its unspeakable power and beauty." The Queen has been to see the play twice. Bulwer was called for the first night, and acknowledged the compliment by bowing to the audience from his box.

The Italian Opera would appear thus far to have fallen short of the expectations of the public. The cry is, that there is not sufficient talent in the company. The two debutantes, Signora Monani and Mrs. Croft, produced no great sensation. The press seems resolved to force Laporte into an engagement of Tamburini, whose terms the manager thinks extortionate, but to which he will doubtless be compelled to yield.

Knowles is writing a new play, which a friend, who has read it as far as completed, thinks will be equal to his best efforts. Knowles has been playing in Scotland.

The result of Mr. Duncombe's motion, of which the object was to remove the restrictions upon the Westminster theatres during Lent, is thus bitterly announced in the "Examiner:"—

Little did certain parsons in going to a Duke's ball in Sussex on a Wednesday evening, imagine that they were furnishing an irresistible reinforcement to Mr. T. Duncombe's motion for opening the London theatres in future seasons of Lent. But so it was. The example of fifty nine parsons at a ball and supper on a fast-day was too much for Lord John Russell, and without more ado with the Bishop of London, he yielded in the following terms:—

"The question then was whether the restriction upon the performances on Wednesdays and Fridays during Lent should be observed, and he begged to say that he thought it would have been most unwise and indecent on the part of the ministers if they had proposed a motion which should have had the effect of changing the system. But when this came to be the question in dispute they must look at what was the general mode of observing Lent in the metropolis and in the country generally [hear, hear]; and it must be admitted that, whether they looked to what took place in London, or to what took place in Sussex, which had been referred to by the honourable gentleman, they saw that persons of the most serious views with regard to the observance of religion, and that a great portion of the clergy themselves no longer observed Lent in the same manner [hear, hear] in which it appeared to have been observed in the early times of the Reformation. [Hear, hear] They saw, then, that the custom in this respect was changed, and as it was observed that the clergy had not objected to give dinners and to go to balls during the period in question, it was not inexpedient to make a change or to cease to keep up the restriction which now existed. [Hear, hear.] Therefore, to review what he had said, they were not disposed to make any change during the present season. The Lord Chamberlain had made his order with regard to Drury Lane Theatre, and if it were disobeyed he would put his authority in force; but, by making a change in the law hereafter, they would remove the existing restriction."

Fred. Yates is the manager of the Adelphi, and is noted for his enterprise, not hesitating at any expense, or any humbug, by which to fill his house. He is the man who brought the Bayaderes over from Paris, and the letter which announced to his partner the success of his negociations with them was enough of itself to draw for a time. He has lately been endeavoring to engage Grace Drling, a heroic girl, who has recently won immortality by rescuing, with her father, at imminent hazard, the crew of a shipwrecked vessel. The following is Yates's letter to the old man, offering an engagement—that is, it may well be supposed to be his, it's so like him:—

"Dear Sir,—I don't know you, excepting by name; you don't know me, excepting by ditto. I have a bargain to make; snug's the word, so let me know your terms. I have only seen your daughter in some d—d woodcuts—bad the best. If she's pretty—that is, if she'll bear making up well for gaslight—I'm your man—give you twenty guineas a-week, and she's my woman. I don't know if you're much in the family way, old boy, or if you've got any more heirs than graces, but if you should like to come over to us and see the lions, I'll take the whole family at thirty—I will, by G—d. Can you pack up the lighthouse, and bring it with you? If so, take care of the revolver for the sake of effect and d—n the expense. By the way we shall expect you to find your own boat, as our's is cutting up for the fairy car in in the pantomine; we are rather short of sculls too, though, as Laura says, we've got plenty of oars. Do you twig, old fellow: but mum! close! don't you let what I've said at home get abroad. I've had lots of opposition. Three London managers (all avaricious-money-getting-curmudgeons) have sent expresses, but mine had a day's start as usual. Once more, old buck, say nothing to nobody, but be up, down, and fly to every move and dodge on the road. Let's hear by return, so that we may get out the posters in good time before your arrival.

"Your's, &c., FRED. YATES."

"P.S.—Done 'em again by all the gods of Olympus."

At this letter Mr. Darling looked, Miss Darling looked, John and George Darling looked, and all the little Darling's looked, first at the letter, then at the courier, and finally at one and another. They agreed, however, that though the letter had come to its conclusion, they would come to none; so they took the courier aside and said—nothing.

Yankee Hill has returned from his trip to Paris, and by last accounts, was playing at the Haymarket, in "A Wife for a Day," a new farce, of which he is the life and soul.

Barnett's opera of "Farinelli" continues to draw at Drury Lane, in conjunction with Van Amburgh's lions. These latter animals were to close their engagement on the 23d ult., with the benefit of the "lion tamer," and as the papers say, "after an unprecedented career of success and popularity in his peculiar line. The circumstances attending the introduction of the two lions recently arrived to the inmates of the cages, are said to be very interesting. Mr. Van Amburgh slept for three nights in the cage in which the fresh animals were placed before he could trust them with the others, as the hostility manifested by the veteran occupants against the new-comers was intense."

THEATRICAL CHIT CHAT.

A new drama, of a very superior calibre, from the pen of Miss Fanny Kemble (Mrs. Butler), is said to be in the hands of Macready, for Covent Garden. There is not the slightest probability, however, of its being produced this season.

Death of Judith Grisi.—Last week "Norma" was to be performed at the Odeon, when the play-bill was suddenly altered, and "La Sonnambula" was announced instead. The cause was neither an indisposition, nor a caprice, but the death of Giulia Grisi's sister—poor Judith, who sang with so much feeling and expression in "La Straniera," and enacted Bellini's Romeo as it has never been played since. Judith Grisi has died at Rome a princess, as all the Italian cantatrice end. The next day, however, it is announced that she is not only not dead, but likely to recover.

Debut of Mdlle. Pauline Garcia.—The Theatre de la Renaissance was crowded in all parts on Saturday, the 15th, by the most fashionable company in Paris, for the grand concert, in which the sister of the lamented Malibran was to make her debut. An able Parisian critic says, "The debutante has something of her sister in her features and tournure; her voice reminds us still more of our loss. She has one of those extraordinary voices, partaking of the soprano and contralto; but what is more valuable still, she possesses to a rare degree the genius of song, soul, and inspiration." She sang three pieces, a grand scena of Costa's Malek-Adhel, an aria composed by M. de Beriot, and introduced by Malibran into the "Elissire d'Amore," and lastly, the "Trille du Diable," arranged by Panseron from "Tartini's Dream," for the voice and violin. In the latter fantasia she was accompanied by M. de Beriot; she had scarcely given the strange melodies which the Italian violinist fancied he heard performed by the Devil, seated at the foot of his bed, when her brother-in-law had already executed them upon his instrument. Their marvellous ensemble drew forth shouts of applause, though it was, perhaps, in the allegro of the grand scena that the acclamations elicited by poor Maria's sister seemed loudest and most unanimous.

Mrs. C. Mathews (late Madame Vestris).—A respectably-dressed youth, named Edward Purday, called on Sunday last at the house of Mrs. Mathews, at Elm Grove, Notting-hill, Kensington, and desired an interview with that lady, which being granted, the youth immediately said he was her son, and he had come to claim her as his mother, as also some property which had been left him by his father, the Duke of Cumberland. Mr. Mathews, who was in the apartment at the time, immediately sent for a constable. The youth begged he might not be taken into custody, but upon being told that he would be, he said, "Well, I was told five years ago by a man named Harrogan, that I was the son of Madame Vestris and the Duke of Cumberland." Upon being questioned, he said, "If it was not the Duke of Cumberland, it was Lord Harrington who was his father, but he was sure Madame Vestris was his mother." Mr. Mathews having given the youth in charge, he was taken on Monday before the magistrates at Queen-square, when it was clearly proved that the boy was of unsound mind. His father, who is a respectable tradesman at Richmond, having promised to keep his son in future under proper restraint, the prisoner was liberated.

Taglioni and her caro sposa, Mr. Gilbert des Voisier, left St. Petersburg on the 20th ult., after having appeared in a new ballet, entitled "La Creole." She was to stay ten days at Warsaw, on her way to Vienna, where she will arrive at the close of the present month, and where she will make her debut on the 2d of April, in "La Fille du Danube," and reach Paris about the 10th of May. The famed danseuse was to receives 3000 roubles each night of her performance at the Warsaw theatre.

The Duke of Wellington, accompanied by a lady and two gentlemen, recently visited the Olympic theatre. Just before the commencement of "Blue Beard," his Grace was recognized by the audience, who hailed his presence with loud and general acclamations, which the noble Duke acknowledged with great good humor. At the termination of the performance the acclamations were renewed with increased enthusiasm, and continued for a considerable time, concluding with a call for one cheer more, which was given with fervent unanimity and astounding force. The Duke appeared in good health and high spirits.

The great success of Miss Kemble in Italy has delayed Mr. Kemble's return to England, and his lease having expired in Park-place, he has directed his friend George Robins to convert his furniture and the appendages into cash. The sale takes place on Friday next.

The Court Journal of the 16th ult speaks thus of the Covent Garden Theatrical Fund:

"The anniversary festival of this excellent institution, which will take place at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday next, will boast the presence of the Duke of Cambridge [who will take the chair], and a number of the Nobility and Gentry, who have promised to support his Royal Highness on the occasion of his first visit to this charity. Miss M. B. Hawes, Miss P. Horton, Miss Romer, Madame Dulcken, the Hungarian singers, Mr. Sedgwick, and many other eminent vocalists, have volunteered their valuable services. The musical arrangement will be under the direction of Sir George Smart, who will preside at the pianoforte."

The following choice bit of Royal scandal we find in the chronicles of fashion abroad, and hasten to communicate to the readers of the "Spirit."

"The King of Bavaria lately made a decree that none in his dominions should wear mustaches, except militaires. The King, travelling into Italy under the incognito of Count D'Au, was stopped by his own guard at the frontiers, and ordered to shave off his own magnificent hirsute appendages; nothing but a declaration of his rank saved him from the calamity." Paris paper.

So far the newspaper paragraph! Our Munich correspondent has furnished us with a leaf from the scandalous chronicles of Munich, which, if true, accounts for the King's dislike to mustache-adorned civilians.

His Majesty Lewis Charles Augustus, who is one of the most learned and accomplished sovereigns in Europe, is in the habit of wandering about the suburbs of Munich in disguise. On one of these excursions his Majesty's attention was attracted by as pretty a piece of humanity, in the shape of a woman, as one would wish to see. We are not enabled to give a description of this romantic beauty; suffice to say, that the King addressed the girl—flattered and amused her by his agreeable conversation—was allowed to see her to her father's residence (the father being a humble shopkeeper), where he left her under the promise of meeting her at the same hour the following evening.

Now previous to this it had happened, that whilst walking in the celebrated gallery of paintings, the King observed a remarkably handsome young gentleman, dressed with great elegance, examining the pictures. Believing him to be a man of distinction and a stranger, the King desired one of his attendants to inquire his name, and invite him to the palace. The attendant did so, the stranger said he was the Chevalier de Rigny; and was staying at Munich for the purpose of examining the various works of art which adorn it. The Chevalier proceeded to the palace, where he was well received by the King, and his visits were repeated again and again, though Lewis thought that the Chevalier, notwithstanding his elegant appearance and manners, was somewhat of a blockhead.

When Lewis proceeded to fulfil his engagements with the fair bourgeoise, he was annoyed by observing, a little way before him, the Chevalier de Rigny, who pursued the very path it was necessary that he (the King) should take. His Majesty was still more provoked when the Chevalier continued to make every turn just before him, as if he were acting as an avant courier; however, cautiously keeping his distance, he kept in the Chevalier's wake, when lo! the Chevalier stopped at the door of the very shopkeeper whose daughter Lewis was about to meet! De Rigny was admitted; and shortly after the girl came from the house, attired for a walk, and joined the King.

"Pray who is that gentleman who has just gone into the house?" said Lewis.

"Oh! that is my brother!"

"Indeed!" said the King.

"Yes! he has come from Paris to visit us; he is, I can assure you, a great man at Paris—he is the most fashionable perruquier there, I can tell you."

What was the result of his Majesty's suit we cannot tell, but the King never admitted the Chevalier again to his presence; and being determined that he would not again be deceived by a pair of handsome mustaches, he made a decree against all civilians wearing them, and good-humoredly told the story of the Chevalier de Rigny, amidst the laughter of his court.

THEATRICALS AT BRUGGE IN BELGIUM.

But the nation has willed that we shall have no news till Wednesday at Brussells, and then—"May I be there to see?" Meantime I have a few words to say about Brugge in continuation. On my arrival there, on the evening of the 27th ult., being Sunday, I found its fashionables entering the theatre, and, hoping to escape from some steam-packet revolutionary sensations, I entered too. I beheld a stage narrower than our Adelphi, and the audience portion of the house shaped like a lyre, very lengthy towards the sounding-board. Nobody thinks of sitting in the upper regions; thereabouts a grand lustre, descending from the roof midway over the pit, conveniently shuts out the nakedness of the land from the eyes of the sensitive actors. A serious performance, well murdered in a provincial theatre, has frequently a much more amusing effect than the most legitimate comedy. They were doing Herold's awful opera of Zampa; or, La Fiancee de Marbre, for my benefit that evening. The blasphemous Corsaire stalked about in clerical boots and black glazed gloves of patent leather to match. In placing the ring on the finger of the statue he lifted the hand up and let it drop again. In the churchyard scene, the puppet corpse rose from the yawning tomb and clawed at Zampa's head, again and again making long arms in vain to reach it, till he brought it within striking distance. Madame Voiturier, who played the Bride, wore a double-Dutch allowance of petticoats. This was prudent, for the weather was very severe, and sauve qui peut was the order of the night. The ladies had their comfortable little footstool stoves in the boxes, and the Countess of C——, who sat beside me, wisely brought her supper of sandwiches into town from her chateau. The orchestra was in force, consisting of above thirty performers, who occupied exactly one quarter of the pit. The conductor, M. Jaume, was so forte that I expected every minute he would break his fiddlestick against the little dog-kennel which served for a prompting-box. It was not his fault if Herold's music were not done justice to; his band really played with taste, but the vox populi on the stage might all have undergone une fiancee de marbre without much loss to art. The opera was followed by the second act of Scribe's Domino Noir—not as you received it in London, denuded of Auber's songs and chorusses, but "supported by all the musical strength of the company." To do the French justice they are quite at home in comedy, and make the songs tell, even without voice. Gil Peres was personated by a M. Desessarts, in a style of shrewd, quiet, knowing, tremulous jocoseness (not tipsiness,) which you saw nothing of in London (though the Domino Noir appeared at all your theatres), and which, perhaps, can only be happily attained and appreciated in a country like Belgium—ferme Catholique. He sang "Chaque a son gout! pour soulpe, deo gracias!" with the finest grotesque choral embellishments till half-a-dozen performers in the orchestra (case-hardened sinners as they must be) nearly fell off their stools in convulsions of suppressed laughter. His face would almost make his fortune in London, and a few judicious lessons would probably enable him to convert his Flemish into pure Zummerzetshire, and shine in Solomon Lob, Frank Oatlands, and Stephen Harrowby. The pride of the Dutch petticoats played the Black Domino with much naivete, but, on assuming the character of the Paysana, appeared with a red flat appendage fastened to the back of her head, fully as broad as the largest dinner-plate, and standing up like a fan! The Brugois seemed to think the headdress was veritable Arragonese; but they have never seen Madame Vestris in this role, and "I guess she finds herself too much at home in London to think of illuminating 'Confounded Foreigners'" on these dramatic refinements in future.

TESTACEOUS LYRICS.

THE DISCONSOLATE CLAM TO HIS MISTRESS.

Ah, dearest! when I sat entranced,
Through many a happy day,
And heard thee sing, as Cupid danced,
'Young love will ne'er decay,'
I little dreamed that wicked men,
For hateful lust of gold,
Would murder youthful clams, and then
Look on while they were sold!

To know that we are doomed to part,
That all our hopes are vain;
To feel the ashes near my heart,
The coals upon my brain;
To lie and think of severed joys,
And sigh a last farewell,
While roasting here for clam-orous boys,
'T will burst my very shell!

But hark! I hear the hopeful twain
To seat themselves prepare;
I scent, alas! with added pain,
The butter, sliced with care;
Soon, soon the knife will do its work—
Now pray be gentle, Sam!
There! there! I'm out—oh, what a jerk!
Farewell! thou widow'd clam!

Boston, February, 1839. From the March Knickerbocker.

On Sunday evening the horses in the Hereford mail-coach ran away at great speed up the street of Ludlow, dashing the vehicle with such force against a buttress of the old gate as to shiver it to pieces and kill two of the horses; the coachman had his arm broken, and the guard escaped unhurt.
Worcestershire Chronicle.

Duel in France.—The Courrier Francais states that the son of the Duke of Rovigo fought a duel on Thursday, with swords, in the forest of Saint Germain, and received so severe a wound in the breast, by which part of the lungs was pierced, that it has not been possible to bring him to Paris. The Marquess of St. Pierre was his antagonist, and the quarrel was about a French actress.

Other Engravings are in hand, and will appear immediately.

The "Spirit of the Times" was established by its present Editor Dec. 10, 1831; the Old Series contained Five Volumes. On the 20th Feb., 1836, a New Series was commenced, which closed on the 23d of Feb., 1839, comprising Three Volumes; a very few copies of the last two may be had bound at the Office, or they will be sent in sheets to order through the Mail.

☞ Great care is taken to forward THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES strongly enveloped and legibly directed by the earliest Mails, to its different Subscribers throughout the Union, the Canadas, and Texas, and particular attention is paid to its punctual and safe transmission by Ship, to Foreign Ports. Subscribers in Great Britain, France, and the British West India Islands, can rely upon receiving their papers with as much regularity as if residents of this country.

☞ Extra copies of the LARGE ENGRAVINGS ON STEEL may be obtained at the Publication Office at One Dollar each; orders enclosing the money will be promptly attended to, and the Engravings, with or without the paper, will be sent to any section of the Union, so enveloped as to secure them from injury.
